Public Hearing Held On Budget; Bids Made

Requests Heard for Higher Pay Boosts; Laboratory Workers Ask Wage Raise; Assessment Survey Suggested

Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk's hearing on the 1951 tentative city budget last night in the Common Council chamber brought bids for higher pay boosts, an analysis of a lower total assessed valuation, requests for helmets, raincoats and boots for volunteer firemen and a bid to include city laboratory employes in the five per cent bonus plan.

The budget as presented last night calls for $1,470,209.94 to be raised by taxation and would fix the tax rate at $47.68. This is $139,376.76 over the 1950 budget which set a tax rate of $43.08. The mayor said a change in the county's fiscal year and salary bonuses accounted for most of the increase.

Only 35 persons attended the hearing and about 12 spoke on the budget.

Attorney Charles Gaffney, representing local police and firemen, said they were currently 51.5 per cent behind the present cost-of-living level and that the mayor's five per cent across-the-board raise would mean less than $3 a week on the average in pay envelopes.

Gaffney said that from 1939 to 1950 the men in the departments which he represenateed received a 23 per cent increase in salaries while the general increase over that period according to authoritative national surveys has been 74 per cent.

Straight Raises Sought

A straight raise per man is sought, Gaffney said, because of the complexity of the rate system. He said he was "well aware of your problems on the budget," and of inflation trends, and he urged the mayor reconsider his five per cent proposal and give the personnel of the two departments "a fixed raise per man" that would be somewhere near the current cost-of-living rate.

Dr. Herbert Derman, director of the City of Kingston Laboratory, read a petition signed by laboratory employes, and endorsed by him and members of the laboratory board, and asking that laboratory employes not be excluded from the five per cent bonus proposal.

The petition requested "Equality of treatment in reference to the cost-of-living bonus with all other employes of the City of Kingston," and said, "the singling out of the laboratory staff for exclusion from this benefit is unjust."

Were 'Corrections,' He Says

Such raises as "we accorded laboratory personnel in previous years," it said, "were not intended by the board of managers as cost of living adjustments, but merely as corrections of the pay scale for the specialized talents of the staff in recognition of their relative value to the community."

"Any comments that laboratory personnel already possess a higher wage scale than similarly titled employes in other city departments are based on a misconception inherent in comparing positions by titles and not by duties. Except for the position of stenographer, there are no comparable positions to ours in the city. This staff also suffers the inequity of having no provision in its pay scales for annual increments as are accorded other civil employes. To exclude the laboratory from the proposed citywide bonus

Detectives Find Object in Lake

Special Tackle Required to Get Item Same Size as 'Scone'

London, Dec. 29 (AP)—Scotland Yard detectives probing in a Hyde Park lake found an object today of the same size and shape as Britain's missing coronation stone.

They sent for special tackle to raise the object from its resting place, about a mile from Westminster Abbey where the 458-pound stone was stolen on Christmas morning.

Police in charge of the operation said they hoped to be ready to make the lift about dusk.

Rusty Old Safe

Earlier in the day a crowd of hundreds groaned when another object seized by the police grapples turned out to be a rusty old safe.

The uniformed boatmen, who already had found six long-lost park benches and a variety of common stones, went back to their dredging.

The search in the lake—known as the Serpentine—was touched off by an anonymous telephone tip late yesterday.

Detectives were hot on the trail today of a Swiss watch, a five-year-old trail leading back to a British Army post exchange in Rome.

A wrist watch was abandoned by one of the thieves in the Abbey. Arthur Morris, of Ross-on-Wye, told police he bought an identical watch from a PX while serving at an army hospital in Rome in autumn, 1945.

Morris' watch carried the serial Number 3046. The timepiece found in the Abbey was numbered 3045. Morris said only three watches of this type were sold in his unit.

Ban on Jokes

The British Broadcasting Corporation clapped a ban today on jokes about the theft of the stone. The BBC said such humor "touches too closely on royalty and the church to be in good taste."

In one blue-penciled script a comedian referring to a chubby girl friend, had planned to say:

"It's good news about Maud. She lost a stone (British term for 14 pounds) over Christmas." A stooge was supposed to reply:

"So did Westminster Abbey, and the resemblance doesn't end there."

Freezing Rain Puts Northeast Under Hazardous Blanket

Many Cars, Trucks Take to Roadsides in Hope of Thaw; Snow Ahead

New York, Dec. 29 (AP)—A driving rain that froze as it fell sheathed large sections of the northeast in ice today.

Driving was hazardous. Many cars and trucks pulled to the side of the highways to await a thaw. New Jersey state officials appealed to motorists to stay off the roads.

Heavy snow accompanied the freezing rain in New England. One man was killed under the wheels of a truck on the Worcester, Mass., turnpike near Natick.

The Weather Bureau said snow accumulations in eastern and and southern New England in the next 24 hours would range from two to six inches. Western Massachusetts already had two inches of snow.

Ice made roads in southeastern Connecticut impassable, and sand truck operators said it was im-

Japan Seen As Our Best World Ally

Japanese Attitude That of Voluntary Desire to Assist in Fighting in Korea

Interests Are Akin

Nation Also Is Anxious to End Occupation, Get Seat in U.N.

(This is the third and final article by Relman Morin, brilliant Associated Press war correspondent, analyzing Far Eastern events since the war broke out in Korea. Morin, just returned from four months in Japan and Korea, here discusses Japan and its value as a potential ally. Morin knows his Japan exceptionally well, having served as chief of bureau in Tokyo for the AP also before the outbreak of World War 2.)

By RELMAN MORIN

New York, Dec. 29 (AP)—Japan, the most dangerous enemy we ever met, is potentially our most effective ally anywhere in the world now.

They tell a story in Tokyo.

It is that, when the Korean fighting broke out last June, a former Japanese army officer presented himself at an American army headquarters, saluted smartly, and said: "General, I can have my old regiment ready to go by Monday morning.

The incident probably never happened, at least in quite that way. But it is an authentic illustration of Japanese attitude.

What did happen was that thousands of Japanese ex-soldiers and officers volunteered to fight. Newspapers unanimously, day after day, proclaimed Japan's right and duty to assist in the Korean struggle. And the entire people, in effect, placed themselves at the disposal of the warring democracies.

It would be naive to assume that this was a result of overweening affection or admiration for the United States—although we have won a certain degree of both.

Major Reasons

The more compelling reasons are:

1. Japan's interests, politically and economically, are tightly tied with our own.

2. The Japanese are naturally anxious to have an end to the occupation, to resume normal trade relations with the rest of the world, and to take their place in the United Nations.

3. Having had three wars with China and Russia, and with a high degree of hatred and suspicion for both nations even when they were not actually at war, the Japanese are under no illusions about their own fate if the two Communist giants ever break loose in the Orient.

Those are the true reasons why Japan is a powerful potential ally of the United States, and the United Nations, today.

Dewey Asks Rent Control And Thruway Completion

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 29 (AP)—Governor Dewey wa ts the state to continue "effective" residential rent control and to rush completion of its 500-mile thruway as a defense project.

The national emergency has increased the importance of both, he will tell the opening session of the Republican-controlled Legislature on Wednesday.

He will classify the New York-to-Buffalo super-highway as "essential" and exempt it from a ban on all but vital capital construction in the state's austerity program for 1951.

In urging continued rent controls, the governor will say that a housing shortage still exists, despite "tremendous" private construction and extensive development of public housing.

Moreover, informed sources say, Dewey will point to the national emergency as a threat to further housing construction, because materials, especially steel, will be short.

He will tell the lawmakers that of all uncertainties faced by the people in these times, rent control should be the "least uncertain."

The state took over the administration of residential rent control in New York from the federal government last May 1.

The governor also will recommend continuation for another year—until March 31, 1952—of the emergency housing act to protect tenants in temporary veterans' housing projects first authorized in 1946.

Originally, the emergency facilities—mostly converted barracks—were slated to be withdrawn from the market five years after completion, through the gradual shifting of veterans to permanent housing.

Another extension of the Emergency Housing Act, a capitol source said, would preclude any legal tangles over use of the temporary housing beyond the five-year period. The administration says the program cost $69,000,000 and has provided facilities for 50,000 veterans and their families.

In calling for completion of the thruway, Dewey will ask the new Legislature to give the required second approval to a proposed constitutional amendment that would place the state's credit behind Thruway Authority bonds.

The proposed amendment was approved by the 1950 Legislature, which created the authority and empowered it to issue $500,000,000

Torso Murder Probers Report Donofrio in Albany Wednesday

Prominent Figures in Torso Probe

Louis Andreozzi, assistant district attorney of Kings county and Detective Charles Kaiser, visited Ulster county Wednesday afternoon in connection with identification efforts of the grim Brooklyn torso murder. New York authorities are trying to determine definitely whether the body is that of Miss Dorothy Martin, 35, formerly of Saugerties. (Freeman Photo)

Evidence Piles Up That Victim Might Be Saugerties Woman

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 29 (AP)—Pasquale Donofrio, 36-year-old house painter sought in Brooklyn's dime locker murder, was reported by police today to have been in Albany as recently as Wednesday night.

Police said Donofrio was seen in the city looking for a job in grills. However, New York city investigators and Albany police combed the city last night but found no trace of him.

Authorities, meanwhile, piled up evidence that a Saugerties woman with whom Donofrio had lived, was the murdered victim.

New York city authorities sought to determine definitely whether the butchered body found Dec. 4 was that of Dorothy Martin, 35, daughter of the postmaster at Saugerties. The answer hinged on a broken jaw.

13-State Alarm Out

A 13-state alarm was out for Donofrio, 36-year-old housepainter who shared a room with her in Brooklyn and previously in Albany. Police said he owned a tan, 1938 coupe.

Louis Andreozzi, assistant district attorney of Kings county, and Detective Charles Kaiser of Brooklyn learned from Albany police yesterday. that a Dorothy Martin and a Pasquale Donofrio had lived in the capitol city within the last few years.

Albany police reported that Donofrio once broke the woman's jaw while beating her, and she was left with a noticeable lump on her face.

An autopsy showed such a protuberance on the head of the dismembered body found in two suitcases in dime-lockers at the Long Island Railroad's Brooklyn terminal.

Would Be 'Iron-Clad'

Andreozzi said that if he established that Miss Martin was treated in Albany for a broken jaw, it would be "iron-clad identification.

Relatives of Miss Martin said there was a "a great likeness to Dorothy" in a pieced-together photograph of the victim.

Her failure to send a Christmas card to her family led her stepmother, Mrs. John Martin, to police on Tuesday. Mrs. Martin said the description she had read of the victim tallied with her stepdaughter's.

Donofrio moved out of the Brooklyn room Dec. 3—the day before the body was discovered. Bloodstains were found in the room.

Police said Donofrio had a record of five arrests on pick-pocket charges, and Miss Martin once was arrested with him.

Government Cuts Money Available for Lending

Dulles Will Give Own Policy Views

Adviser to Acheson Will Go on Air at 8 P.M. Without G.O.P. Nod

Washington, Dec. 29 (AP)—President Truman's comment that the nation is going to steer clear of isolationism set the stage today for Republican John Foster Dulles to join the "great national debate" on foreign policy.

Mr. Truman at his news conference yesterday pinned the isolationist label on former President Herbert Hoover's proposal to concentrate on western hemisphere defense until western Europe demonstrates it has the will and ability to meet Communist aggression.

Dulles, announcing in advance that he agrees with much Mr. Hoover said, is scheduled to state his own views tonight (8 p. m., EST) in an address at New York to the American Association for the United Nations. Dulles, adviser to Secretary of State Acheson, said however he would express a viewpoint "somewhat different" from Hoover's.

In a telegram to Hoover, Dulles said he regretted his speech had been billed in advance as a reply to the former president. He explained his purpose was to make a contribution to the "great national

Two Billions Is Frozen Out of Lending Market by Reserve

Washington, Dec. 29 (AP)—The government cut down sharply today on money available for private loans and forged strong new links for harnessing the national economy more firmly to the defense drive.

A Federal Reserve Board order to its 6,885 member banks called for freezing $2,000,000,000 out of the loan market.

The board said its action would cut off a potential further increase of $12,000,000,000 in the already record-high volume of bank loans. This is because banks could have lent the $2 billion over and over again.

The Economic Stabilization Agency announced that it will open 13 regional offices "to handle price and wage problems," a step apparently paving the way for stricter controls expected later.

The National Production Authority (NPA) decreed that the U. S. will take over immediately as sole importer and distributor of natural rubber. Since it already controls synthetic production this move puts the government in virtual control of all rubber.

N.P.A. announced this new move last night only a few hours after it had forbidden hoarding of 55 essential materials, including steel, lumber and paper. An N.P.A.

Auto Industry Begins Output Cutbacks Jan. 1

Detroit, Dec. 29 (AP)—The auto industry got ready today to cut output of new cars at the start of the new year. National emergency demands will force curtailment.

Production cutbacks will cause layoffs of a large number of auto workers. The unemployment, however, is expected to be only temporary as the industry converts to defense production.

The car makers said government restrictions on use of critical materials make the cutbacks necessary. The trade paper Automotive News said the cutbacks will range from 20 to 30 per cent throughout the industry in the early months of the new year.

Four companies have announced plans for cutbacks. They are General Motors, Packard, Ford and Studebaker.

General Motors said a week's shutdown at its Linden, N. J., plant would idle some 3,000 workers. The plant is to close next week and reopen Jan. 8.

Packard Motor Car Co. announced it will curtail auto production approximately 20 per cent starting Jan. 2. The firm will lay off 1,800 workers here. Packard has been producing about 550 cars daily.

The Ford Motor Co. Lincoln-Mercury Division announced a cut in car production from 440 to 280 units a day at Metuchen, N. J. more than 1,000 workers will be

Ridgway Is Confident Of Success

MacArthur Says Reds Seize High Area Near Oron, 10 Miles South of Parallel

Planes Hit Enemy

Warcraft Strike Along All Parts of Frozen Front

Tokyo, Dec. 29 (AP)—Massed Red manpower drove United Nations forces back up to 10 miles today in the eastern sector of the Korean warfront.

There was skirmishing all along the defense line.

Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, U. S. Eighth Army commander, expressed "complete confidence in the ultimate success" of the United Nations effort in Korea.

General MacArthur said two Red regiments seized high ground northwest of Oron, 35 miles inland from the Sea of Japan coast and about 10 miles south of Parallel 38.

Another thrust rolled allied forces back southeast of Yongpo, 13 miles due east of Oron.

Says Reds Active

MacArthur said the Reds were active in almost all sectors across Korea's waist. He reported 5,000 to 6,000 Reds were massed west of the frozen Imjin river. Another concentration was spotted south of Yonchon, in the central sector.

Korean Reds were in the forefront of the enemy action. Behind them were hordes of Chinese. MacArthur estimated Thursday that more than 1,350,000 Reds—Chinese and North Korean—were poised in Korea and Manchuria to strike allied forces.

U.N. warplanes struck the enemy all along the frigid front and at his supply lines from Manchuria. Observation planes spotted camouflaged vehicles in the forward areas.

MacArthur said the assault in the Yongpo area began lightly with U.N. troops dispersing 100 Reds in the initial attack. Later a regiment of Communists was thrown at the allied troops and ground was lost.

Allied Unit Repulsed

A briefing officer at U. S. Eighth Army Headquarters said one allied unit was thrown back 10 miles. Another battalion lost three miles.

Air observers reported mounting evidence of Chinese and North Korean forces moving up toward the battlezone.

Ridgway, Eighth Army commander, imposed tight restrictions on pin-pointing any units of his huge force at this time.

While the lid was screwed a little tighter on news in Korea by the allied command, the Red radio at Pyongyang broadcast that United Nations forces had suffered losses of men and war materiel in the Kangwon area on Dec. 24 and 25.

Blows are 'Inflicted'

"The People's forces operating in the Kangwon province inflicted blows upon the enemy's powerful units in the area south of the 38th Parallel on Dec. 24 and 25 with immense results," the radio said.

"According to a part of the war records, our forces inflicted about 320 casualties upon the enemy forces and captured about 110 troops in the said actions."

MacArthur quoted the enemy report in his communique.

U. S. Far East Air Forces and Fifth Air Force fighters and bombers kept plugging at the Communists near the Red front. Towns harboring enemy men and supplies were blasted in North Korea.

Split Over Treaty Seems Inevitable

United States and Russia Exchange Notes on Japanese Pact

Washington, Dec. 29 (AP)—A final split between Russia and the United States over drafting a Japanese peace treaty appears almost inevitable.

An exchange of notes between the two powers, the latest released here last night, disclosed several major points of conflict which diplomats doubt can be resolved. The United States shows every intention of pressing for a treaty regardless of Russia's attitude.

The American note released last night answered half a dozen questions which the Soviet Union had put to this government on Nov. 20 regarding American intentions on a peace settlement.

Points of difference which now emerge from the exchange are mainly these:

1. The United States rejects Russia's contention that any of the great powers should have a veto over the treaty. This means that if Russia will not go along on terms acceptable to this and other friendly nations, then the United States is prepared to go forward without Russia.

U. S. Is Going Ahead

2. The United States is going ahead without consulting Communist China, despite Russia's emphasis on Red Chinese interest in Japan. It is pointed out that

Plates Must Be Used

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 29 (AP)—Here's another reminder on those 1951 motor vehicle license plates: They must be displayed after midnight Sunday on taxicabs, buses and ambulances. They don't have to be used until after midnight Jan. 31 on passenger cars, commercial vehicles, trailers, suburbans and motorcycles. They may be used on those vehicles beginning midnight Sunday, however. Dealer and transporter plates must be changed by midnight Jan. 10.

Louis Andreozzi, assistant district attorney of Kings county and Detective Charles Kaiser, visited Ulster county Wednesday afternoon in connection with identification efforts of the grim Brooklyn torso murder. New York authorities are trying to determine definitely whether the body is that of Miss Dorothy Martin, 35, formerly of Saugerties. (Freeman Photo)

Evidence Piles Up That Victim Might Be Saugerties Woman

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 29 (AP)—Pasquale Donofrio, 36-year-old house painter sought in Brooklyn's dime locker murder, was reported by police today to have been in Albany as recently as Wednesday night.

Police said Donofrio was seen in the city looking for a job in grills. However, New York city investigators and Albany police combed the city last night but found no trace of him.

Authorities, meanwhile, piled up evidence that a Saugerties woman with whom Donofrio had lived, was the murdered victim.

New York city authorities sought to determine definitely whether the butchered body found Dec. 4 was that of Dorothy Martin, 35, daughter of the postmaster at Saugerties. The answer hinged on a broken jaw.

13-State Alarm Out

A 13-state alarm was out for Donofrio, 36-year-old housepainter who shared a room with her in Brooklyn and previously in Albany. Police said he owned a tan, 1938 coupe.

Louis Andreozzi, assistant district attorney of Kings county, and Detective Charles Kaiser of Brooklyn learned from Albany police yesterday that a Dorothy Martin and a Pasquale Donofrio had lived in the capitol city within the last few years.

Albany police reported that Donofrio once broke the woman's jaw while beating her, and she was left with a noticeable lump on her face.

An autopsy showed such a protuberance on the head of the dismembered body found in two suitcases in dime-lockers at the Long Island Railroad's Brooklyn terminal.

Would Be 'Iron-Clad'

Andreozzi said that if he established that Miss Martin was treated in Albany for a broken jaw, it would be "iron-clad identification.

Relatives of Miss Martin said there was a "a great likeness to Dorothy" in a pieced-together photograph of the victim.

Her failure to send a Christmas card to her family led her stepmother, Mrs. John Martin, to police on Tuesday. Mrs. Martin said the description she had read of the victim tallied with her stepdaughter's.

Donofrio moved out of the Brooklyn room Dec. 3—the day before the body was discovered. Bloodstains were found in the room.

Police said Donofrio had a record of five arrests on pick-pocket charges, and Miss Martin once was arrested with him.

Government Cuts Money Available for Lending

Dulles Will Give Own Policy Views

Adviser to Acheson Will Go on Air at 8 P.M. Without G.O.P. Nod

Washington, Dec. 29 (AP)—President Truman's comment that the nation is going to steer clear of isolationism set the stage today for Republican John Foster Dulles to join the "great national debate" on foreign policy.

Mr. Truman at his news conference yesterday pinned the isolationist label on former President Herbert Hoover's proposal to concentrate on western hemisphere defense until western Europe demonstrates it has the will and ability to meet Communist aggression.

Dulles, announcing in advance that he agrees with much Mr. Hoover said, is scheduled to state his own views tonight (8 p. m., EST) in an address at New York to the American Association for the United Nations. Dulles, adviser to Secretary of State Acheson, said however he would express a viewpoint "somewhat different" from Hoover's.

In a telegram to Hoover, Dulles said he regretted his speech had been billed in advance as a reply to the former president. He explained his purpose was to make a contribution to the "great national

Two Billions Is Frozen Out of Lending Market by Reserve

Washington, Dec. 29 (AP)—The government cut down sharply today on money available for private loans and forged strong new links for harnessing the national economy more firmly to the defense drive.

A Federal Reserve Board order to its 6,885 member banks called for freezing $2,000,000,000 out of the loan market.

The board said its action would cut off a potential further increase of $12,000,000,000 in the already record-high volume of bank loans. This is because banks could have lent the $2 billion over and over again.

The Economic Stabilization Agency announced that it will open 13 regional offices "to handle price and wage problems," a step apparently paving the way for stricter controls expected later.

The National Production Authority (NPA) decreed that the U. S. will take over immediately as sole importer and distributor of natural rubber. Since it already controls synthetic production this move puts the government in virtual control of all rubber.

N.P.A. announced this new move last night only a few hours after it had forbidden hoarding of 55 essential materials, including steel, lumber and paper. An N.P.A.

Auto Industry Begins Output Cutbacks Jan. 1

Detroit, Dec. 29 (AP)—The auto industry got ready today to cut output of new cars at the start of the new year. National emergency demands will force curtailment.

Production cutbacks will cause layoffs of a large number of auto workers. The unemployment, however, is expected to be only temporary as the industry converts to defense production.

The car makers said government restrictions on use of critical materials make the cutbacks necessary. The trade paper Automotive News said the cutbacks will range from 20 to 30 per cent throughout the industry in the early months of the new year.

Four companies have announced plans for cutbacks. They are General Motors, Packard, Ford and Studebaker.

General Motors said a week's shutdown at its Linden, N. J., plant would idle some 3,000 workers. The plant is to close next week and reopen Jan. 8.

Packard Motor Car Co. announced it will curtail auto production approximately 20 per cent starting Jan. 2. The firm will lay off 1,800 workers here. Packard has been producing about 550 cars daily.

The Ford Motor Co. Lincoln-Mercury Division announced a cut in car production from 440 to 280 units a day at Metuchen, N. J. more than 1,000 workers will be

Ridgway Is Confident Of Success

MacArthur Says Reds Seize High Area Near Oron, 10 Miles South of Parallel

Planes Hit Enemy

Warcraft Strike Along All Parts of Frozen Front

Tokyo, Dec. 29 (AP)—Massed Red manpower drove United Nations forces back up to 10 miles today in the eastern sector of the Korean warfront.

There was skirmishing all along the defense line.

Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, U. S. Eighth Army commander, expressed "complete confidence in the ultimate success" of the United Nations effort in Korea.

General MacArthur said two Red regiments seized high ground northwest of Oron, 35 miles inland from the Sea of Japan coast and about 10 miles south of Parallel 38.

Another thrust rolled allied forces back southeast of Yongpo, 13 miles due east of Oron.

Says Reds Active

MacArthur said the Reds were active in almost all sectors across Korea's waist. He reported 5,000 to 6,000 Reds were massed west of the frozen Imjin river. Another concentration was spotted south of Yonchon, in the central sector.

Korean Reds were in the forefront of the enemy action. Behind them were hordes of Chinese. MacArthur estimated Thursday that more than 1,350,000 Reds—Chinese and North Korean—were poised in Korea and Manchuria to strike allied forces.

U.N. warplanes struck the enemy all along the frigid front and at his supply lines from Manchuria. Observation planes spotted camouflaged vehicles in the forward areas.

MacArthur said the assault in the Yongpo area began lightly with U.N. troops dispersing 100 Reds in the initial attack. Later a regiment of Communists was thrown at the allied troops and ground was lost.

Allied Unit Repulsed

A briefing officer at U. S. Eighth Army Headquarters said one allied unit was thrown back 10 miles. Another battalion lost three miles.

Air observers reported mounting evidence of Chinese and North Korean forces moving up toward the battlezone.

Ridgway, Eighth Army commander, imposed tight restrictions on pin-pointing any units of his huge force at this time.

While the lid was screwed a little tighter on news in Korea by the allied command, the Red radio at Pyongyang broadcast that United Nations forces had suffered losses of men and war materiel in the Kangwon area on Dec. 24 and 25.

Blows are 'Inflicted'

"The People's forces operating in the Kangwon province inflicted blows upon the enemy's powerful units in the area south of the 38th Parallel on Dec. 24 and 25 with immense results," the radio said.

"According to a part of the war records, our forces inflicted about 320 casualties upon the enemy forces and captured about 110 troops in the said actions."

MacArthur quoted the enemy report in his communique.

U. S. Far East Air Forces and Fifth Air Force fighters and bombers kept plugging at the Communists near the Red front. Towns harboring enemy men and supplies were blasted in North Korea.

Split Over Treaty Seems Inevitable

United States and Russia Exchange Notes on Japanese Pact

Washington, Dec. 29 (AP)—A final split between Russia and the United States over drafting a Japanese peace treaty appears almost inevitable.

An exchange of notes between the two powers, the latest released here last night, disclosed several major points of conflict which diplomats doubt can be resolved.

The United States shows every intention of pressing for a treaty regardless of Russia's attitude.

The American note released last night answered half a dozen questions which the Soviet Union had put to this government on Nov. 20 regarding American intentions on a peace settlement.

Points of difference which now emerge from the exchange are mainly these:

1. The United States rejects Russia's contention that any of the great powers should have a veto over the treaty. This means that if Russia will not go along on terms acceptable to this and other friendly nations, then the United States is prepared to go forward without Russia.

U. S. Is Going Ahead

2. The United States is going ahead without consulting Communist China, despite Russia's emphasis on Red Chinese interest in Japan. It is pointed out that

Plates Must Be Used

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 29 (AP)—Here's another reminder on those 1951 motor vehicle license plates: They must be displayed after midnight Sunday on taxicabs, buses and ambulances. They don't have to be used until after midnight Jan. 31 on passenger cars, commercial vehicles, trailers, suburbans and motorcycles. They may be used on those vehicles beginning midnight Sunday, however. Dealer and transporter plates must be changed by midnight Jan. 10.

Defense Office Praises Laidlaw OnSchoolProgram

Arthur J. Laidlaw, superintendent of schools, was today complimented by the Kingston Office of Civil Defense for his air raid emergency instructions issued this month to all schools in the city.

Herbert Powell, deputy defense director in charge of public information, issued a release today stressing the importance and timeliness of Laidlaw's instructions, which, the release stated, were of particular importance to Kingston because of its strategic location.

Powell also revealed that the O.C.D. has ordered a moving picture film entitled "You Can Beat the A-Bomb" for showing in all the city's elementary schools as well as the high school and the Myron J. Michael School.

The film, produced by RKO Radio Pictures, Inc., is a 15-minute short that was shown here in a regular commercial showing several months ago and received much favorable comment.

Two air raid drills have already been held in local schools, the O.C.D. said. Instructions issued by Laidlaw include such points as selecting air raid refuge places in buildings, making provisions for handicapped children and the organization of student aid squads to assist during raids.

Recent Diet legislation provides for the licensing and registration of architects throughout Japan.

Questionnaires Being Prepared for Air Reserve Men

First Air Force headquarters at Mitchel Air Force Base today prepared to send out questionnaires to approximately 30,000 Air Reserve officers and airmen whose records are incomplete.

Permanent file cabinets will be provided to accommodate the personnel records of all Air Reservists in this area, which includes 15 northeastern states and the District of Columbia.

Questionnaires seeking up-to-date information were mailed to Air Reservists in New York and other northeastern states some time ago when the recall program was undertaken, but information from about 30,000 men is still lacking.

It was pointed out by the Directorate of Administration of the First Air Force that a large number of Air Reservists may now be in jobs and professions that are altogether different than the jobs they held while they were on active duty during World War 2. The skills they now hold in civilian life may be of great value to the Air Force and this information is sought to provide greater efficiency in the administration of the Reserve program.

If a Reservist is recalled to active duty, he would be recalled to perform specific duties based on his past and present experience and background. The First Air Force will mail questionnaires to Reservists in New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Vermont, Maine, New Hampshire, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Virginia, Maryland, West Virginia, Kentucky, Ohio and the District of Columbia.

Chokes on Grape

Dayton, O., Dec. 29 (AP)—A two-year-old Cleveland boy, Aubrey Vannoy, Jr., choked to death last night on a grape as the New York Central train on which he was a passenger neared Dayton. Efforts to revive him with an inhalator at a hospital here failed. He had been accompanying his parents to Alabama, where they were to attend the funeral of Mrs. Vannoy's mother.

Preparing His Speech

Washington, Dec. 29 (AP)—President Truman leaves late today for a week-end yacht cruise during which he plans to work on his State of Union message. At his news conference yesterday Mr. Truman said he will deliver the message in person to the new Congress on Jan. 8—provided he can get the speech ready.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Dec. 29 (AP)—Stock prices gradually backed down today following the market's rise yesterday to a new 20-year peak.

Declines ranged to $1 a share or so with most below that figure.

Trading started off with a rush. At one time for a brief period the volume of business was so large that the Stock Exchange's price reporting machinery lagged. Turnover slowed somewhat later although sales totaled up to a solid figure.

On the whole the market absorbed a huge volume of profit taking and other types of selling with only minor difficulty. Demand may have been chilled a bit by announcement of a new set of controls, which included a cut in the amount of money available for lending by banks.

Cash sales were again numerous. This transaction calls for immediate delivery of a security and was used to establish tax gains or losses within 1950.

A couple of railroad stocks performed brilliantly, apparently because of a sizable speculative interest.

50 Are Executed

Taipei, Formosa, Dec. 29 (AP)—The China Union Press said today the Chinese Reds recently executed 50 Chinese Nationalist generals who had defected to them. The generals were accused of wavering from communism. The agency said there were a total of 270 executions in the past two months at Wuchow in Kwangsi province.

Police Are Checking Paper Fire in Boxcar

Local police were asked to investigate a fire in bales of paper in a boxcar at the Katz junk yard, lower Hasbrouck avenue last night.

The fire was discovered at 6:08 p. m., and Deputy Fire Chief George Matthews notified police headquarters later last night he had been informed that two boys had been chased from the car five or ten minutes before the blaze was discovered.

A box alarm was sounded from 2311, Hasbrouck avenue and Murray street, a minute after the telephone alarm, and Engine 1, Central station; Engine 2, Cornell; Truck 1, Central; and Cordts and Union hose companies responded.

Two lines of hose were used and the bales were overhauled and removed in quenching the fire.

Another call at 9:16 p. m., was for smoke at 5 West Strand, the Mansion House, due to a short circuit in a sump pump in the cellar. Engine 2, from Cornell station responded.

Split Over Treaty

Washington has no diplomatic relations with the Peiping regime. Moreover there is no current prospect that such relations will be established.

3 The United States considers that it is "reasonable" for Japan to participate with this and with other nations in arrangements for a Japanese defense which "could include provision for the stationing in Japan of troops of the United States and other nations."

4. The United States is standing by its proposal for a future decision, either by the great powers or by the United Nations, on the status of Formosa. This is U. S. policy despite the 1943 Cairo agreement that Formosa should be restored to China. The Russians interpret that as meaning Communist China.

This country's view about Formosa as presented to Moscow appears to be that because of the Chinese aggression in Korea against United Nations forces, U.N. considerations now take precedence over the Cairo declaration.

Roads Dangerous

New York, Dec. 29 (AP)—Snow, rain and sleet combined today to put ice sheets over sidewalks. Roadways were reported passable though dangerous. Light snow started falling about 1 a. m. and moderated some during the early morning hours as sleet turned into rain and then a slight drizzle. At dawn the temperature was 36 degrees. Underground City

New York, Dec. 29 (AP)—Bomb shelters that would shield 1,000,000 people are envisaged in newly-drawn New York city construction plans. The project, for which the city hopes to obtain federal aid in raising the estimated $104,000,000 cost, would utilize both existing and proposed new subway tunnels. The plans were outlined yesterday. Some of the shelters would be virtual underground towns, with bunks for sleeping, canteen stores, kitchens and first aid rooms.

Defense Office Praises Laidlaw OnSchoolProgram

Arthur J. Laidlaw, superintendent of schools, was today complimented by the Kingston Office of Civil Defense for his air raid emergency instructions issued this month to all schools in the city.

Herbert Powell, deputy defense director in charge of public information, issued a release today stressing the importance and timeliness of Laidlaw's instructions, which, the release stated, were of particular importance to Kingston because of its strategic location.

Powell also revealed that the O.C.D. has ordered a moving picture film entitled "You Can Beat the A-Bomb" for showing in all the city's elementary schools as well as the high school and the Myron J. Michael School.

The film, produced by RKO Radio Pictures, Inc., is a 15-minute short that was shown here in a regular commercial showing several months ago and received much favorable comment.

Two air raid drills have already been held in local schools, the O.C.D. said. Instructions issued by Laidlaw include such points as selecting air raid refuge places in buildings, making provisions for handicapped children and the organization of student aid squads to assist during raids.

Recent Diet legislation provides for the licensing and registration of architects throughout Japan.

Questionnaires Being Prepared for Air Reserve Men

First Air Force headquarters at Mitchel Air Force Base today prepared to send out questionnaires to approximately 30,000 Air Reserve officers and airmen whose records are incomplete.

Permanent file cabinets will be provided to accommodate the personnel records of all Air Reservists in this area, which includes 15 northeastern states and the District of Columbia.

Questionnaires seeking up-to-date information were mailed to Air Reservists in New York and other northeastern states some time ago when the recall program was undertaken, but information from about 30,000 men is still lacking.

It was pointed out by the Directorate of Administration of the First Air Force that a large number of Air Reservists may now be in jobs and professions that are altogether different than the jobs they held while they were on active duty during World War 2. The skills they now hold in civilian life may be of great value to the Air Force and this information is sought to provide greater efficiency in the administration of the Reserve program.

If a Reservist is recalled to active duty, he would be recalled to perform specific duties based on his past and present experience and background. The First Air Force will mail questionnaires to Reservists in New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Vermont, Maine, New Hampshire, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Virginia, Maryland, West Virginia, Kentucky, Ohio and the District of Columbia.

Appoints Capt. Walker

Tokyo, Dec. 29 (AP)—General MacArthur today appointed as his aide Capt. Sam Sims Walker, son of the late Lt. Gen. Walton H. Walker, who was killed a week ago in a Korean jeep accident. The body of General Walker will leave Japan by plane tomorrow for the United States.

Chokes on Grape

Dayton, O., Dec. 29 (AP)—A two-year-old Cleveland boy, Aubrey Vannoy, Jr., choked to death last night on a grape as the New York Central train on which he was a passenger neared Dayton. Efforts to revive him with an inhalator at a hospital here failed. He had been accompanying his parents to Alabama, where they were to attend the funeral of Mrs. Vannoy's mother.

Preparing His Speech

Washington, Dec. 29 (AP)—President Truman leaves late today for a week-end yacht cruise during which he plans to work on his State of Union message. At his news conference yesterday Mr. Truman said he will deliver the message in person to the new Congress on Jan. 8—provided he can get the speech ready.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Dec. 29 (AP)—Stock prices gradually backed down today following the market's rise yesterday to a new 20-year peak.

Declines ranged to $1 a share or so with most below that figure.

Trading started off with a rush. At one time for a brief period the volume of business was so large that the Stock Exchange's price reporting machinery lagged. Turnover slowed somewhat later although sales totaled up to a solid figure.

On the whole the market absorbed a huge volume of profit taking and other types of selling with only minor difficulty. Demand may have been chilled a bit by announcement of a new set of controls, which included a cut in the amount of money available for lending by banks.

Cash sales were again numerous. This transaction calls for immediate delivery of a security and was used to establish tax gains or losses within 1950.

A couple of railroad stocks performed brilliantly, apparently because of a sizable speculative interest.

50 Are Executed

Taipei, Formosa, Dec. 29 (AP)—The China Union Press said today the Chinese Reds recently executed 50 Chinese Nationalist generals who had defected to them. The generals were accused of wavering from communism. The agency said there were a total of 270 executions in the past two months at Wuchow in Kwangsi province.

Police Are Checking Paper Fire in Boxcar

Local police were asked to investigate a fire in bales of paper in a boxcar at the Katz junk yard, lower Hasbrouck avenue last night.

The fire was discovered at 6:08 p. m., and Deputy Fire Chief George Matthews notified police headquarters later last night he had been informed that two boys had been chased from the car five or ten minutes before the blaze was discovered.

A box alarm was sounded from 2311, Hasbrouck avenue and Murray street, a minute after the telephone alarm, and Engine 1, Central station; Engine 2, Cornell; Truck 1, Central; and Cordts and Union hose companies responded.

Two lines of hose were used and the bales were overhauled and removed in quenching the fire.

Another call at 9:16 p. m., was for smoke at 5 West Strand, the Mansion House, due to a short circuit in a sump pump in the cellar. Engine 2, from Cornell station responded.

Split Over Treaty

Washington has no diplomatic relations with the Peiping regime. Moreover there is no current prospect that such relations will be established.

3 The United States considers that it is "reasonable" for Japan to participate with this and with other nations in arrangements for a Japanese defense which "could include provision for the stationing in Japan of troops of the United States and other nations."

4. The United States is standing by its proposal for a future decision, either by the great powers or by the United Nations, on the status of Formosa. This is U. S. policy despite the 1943 Cairo agreement that Formosa should be restored to China. The Russians interpret that as meaning Communist China.

This country's view about Formosa as presented to Moscow appears to be that because of the Chinese aggression in Korea against United Nations forces, U.N. considerations now take precedence over the Cairo declaration.

Underground City

New York, Dec. 29 (AP)—Bomb shelters that would shield 1,000,000 people are envisaged in newly-drawn New York city construction plans. The project, for which the city hopes to obtain federal aid in raising the estimated $104,000,000 cost, would utilize both existing and proposed new subway tunnels. The plans were outlined yesterday. Some of the shelters would be virtual underground towns, with bunks for sleeping, canteen stores, kitchens and first aid rooms.

Lots of Sheep

Canberra (AP)—Australia had 112,891,000 sheep at March 31 last, Commonwealth Statistician Roland Wilson reported. This is the latest date for which figures are available. Australia's sheep population fell from 125,000,000 in 1942 to 95,000,000 in 1947, but since then has been rising steadily. The statistician also announced in a statement that at March 31 Australia had 14,640,000 cattle, the highest number on record.

3,000 Nurses Are Needed to Care for Korean Wounded

District 11, New York State Nurses Association, will urge eligible nurses in this area to apply for commissions in the Army Nurse Corps to help meet an immediate need for 3,000 nurses to care for Korean war casualties, Miss Helen Jones, R.N., publicity chairman of the district, said here yesterday.

The army needs nurses between the ages of 21 and 40, with no dependents under 18. New York state's quota of the 3,000 nurses requested of the American Nurses' Association by the army is 475. Miss Katherine E. Rehder, R.N., executive secretary of the state association and chairman of the A.N.A. committee on nursing resources to meet civilian and military needs, appealed last week to nurses throughout the state to volunteer for army duty.

Local nurses interested in joining the Army Nurse Corps should apply to Lt. Colonel Rosalie D. Calhoun, N29, Office of the Surgeon, Headquarters First Army, Governors Island, N. Y., it was said.

The State Nurses Association, in order to meet the armed forces' present and future need for nurses without loss of essential nursing services to the civilian population or inadequate training of nurses for civil defense duty, has drawn up a three-point program, which was announced here yesterday by Miss Jones.

Objectives Are

The three objectives are: use of men nurses in the military services in their professional status; relieving institutional nurses of many non-professional duties now assigned to them; and making it possible for many thousands of inactive registered nurses in the state to return to their profession.

None of the armed services now accept men nurses in their nurse corps, Miss Jones said, so that the professional training of men taken into the forces is lost. Pointing out that in New York state alone there are several times as many men registered nurses as the entire army nurse quota for the state, she urged that all citizens support the Belton Bill, which would open the nurse corps of all military services to qualified men nurses.

Since the great majority of the nurses requested by the army in its emergency appeal are hospital general duty nurses, hospital services will suffer the greatest loss due to military demands, Miss Jone said. Yet surveys have consistently shown that nearly one-third of a nurse's time in the average hospital is spent in performing non-nursing work. Too many hospitals assign professional nurses to service in linen rooms, clerical sections, admitting offices, and other departments which do not call for nursing techniques, the district officer said.

Would Change Routine

This is a double loss, since it keeps nurses from giving all their time to patient care, and also gives them jobs in which they are not as efficient as a trained housekeeper or clerical worker would be, Miss Jones said, adding that the state association has already proposed to hospital administrators a reassignment of duties within their institutions which would allow nurses to do the work for which they have had three years' professional training.

In order to draw back into service nurses now financially unable to practice, and to prevent a continued loss of registered nurses to other professions, the state association will request that, in the event of a general wage freeze, nurses' salaries in institutions paying less than the association's recommended minimum wage scale be pegged at that minimum rather than the actual wage scale, Miss Jones said.

Pointing out that many trained women, vitally needed in the present defense emergency, simply could not afford to work at their profession, she revealed that many hospitals in the state pay professional nurses only six dollars a day. A young married woman with children could not afford to pay someone to take care of her children for the wages she would receive from her profession it was said.

Would Draw Them Back

"New York has 85,000 registered nurses of a national total of 522,000," Miss Jones continued. "Of the national figure, 205,517 are inactive. National nursing organizations believe that if 85,000 of these nurses could be returned to active service, the present civilian needs of the country would be met. It is perfectly obvious that with such a high percentage of all the country's nurses, New York state could meet all its needs if it could draw back a number of the nurses now unable to make an adequate living at their profession."

Nurses have for a long time been the lowest-paid professional group in the country, Miss Jones emphasized, but the great majority of them enter nursing realizing that it is not a profitable profession. "When it gets to the point where a nurse cannot support herself or meet her responsibilities—as many certainly cannot on six dollars a day—she has no choice other than finding some job, usually demanding far less training and preparation, where she can make a living wage," she continued.

These are the reasons prompting the state association to request that any general wage freeze accept the association's minimum standards as a base level for institutions now paying nurses less than that minimum, Miss Jones said. She stressed the fact that the association will not ask any exemption from a wage freeze for nurses in institutions meeting the recommmended standard.

The minimum wage recommended by the association for a general duty nurse on an eight-hour hospital shift, for five days a week, is $10 a day.

Bans Use of Zinc, Brass

London, Dec. 28 (AP)—Supply Minister George Strauss announced today the use of zinc and brass for non-essential purposes will be banned after Jan. 1. To prevent substitution of copper in these uses the order will include the prohibition of copper for certain purposes. Strauss said increased zinc supplies will be wholly absorbed by defense manufacturers. He blamed the acute shortage of zinc on the Korean situation, which led to stockpiling by industries all over the world, "particularly in the United States."

Rabbit Canned, Pooch Too

Chardon, O., Dec. 29 (AP)—Queenie, a beagle hound, and her inseparable pal, Blackie, just a dog, were missing four days from a hunting jaunt with their master, George Lambert. Then two small boys spotted Blackie—whining and obviously worried. He led them to Queenie, lying in the brush, her head firmly wedged in a five gallon can. The boys took Queenie on a sled to the home of Hartley Smith, nearby. Smith snipped open the can and freed Queenie, hungry but still all right. At the bottom of the can was the explanation: A live half grown rabbit was crouched there, just out of Queenie's reach. They freed the rabbit, too.

AMERICA AT SEA

The condition of the American fleet of merchant ships continues to worry some of the leading figures in the shipping industry. A recent report of the Joint Committee for the American Marine compares the 1950 fleets of the United States and other important maritime nations with those of 1939. This shows that the active American fleet is larger now than just before World War 2, including in the count government-owned vessels chartered for private fleet alone is smaller in number of vessels. Only one other of the major maritime nations, Sweden, has a larger fleet now. All of the others are smaller in numbers.

A notable fact is that almost all of the fleets are larger in tonnage although most are smaller in numbers of ships. This is a result of the persistent trend to make ships, like other things, bigger.

Two things give chief concern to American shippers. One is the small number of fast, modern passenger ships in the American fleet. This hinders American ability to compete in that particular field of maritime service and also is a factor to be considered in event of war. Passenger ships then become troop ships. The other source of concern is the decline in the amount of our foreign trade carried in our own ships. It rose to a high point during the war, and in 1946 over 67 per cent of our foreign trade moved in ships carrying the American Flag. Now the proportion is less than half.

These two points suggest that the United States again is tending to become dependent on the fleets of other nations. With our reliance on the seas for both trade and defense, that is not good.

NEW SOURCE OF TROUBLE

Egypt and the Sudan are at odds. The Sudan is nominally under the joint rule of Egypt and Great Britain. Actually the real control is exercised by the British. The Sudanese get along well enough with Britain, but they dislike the Egyptians, and do not wish to be ruled by them. To get rid of any possibility of Egyptian rule, a motion has been introduced in the Sudanese parliament, supported by fifty members, calling for immediate self-government, presumably under some sort of British supervision. The Egyptians think they see the loss of the Sudan looming up, and do not wish to have self-government so much as discussed.

The pride of possession has something to do with this Egyptian stand. Another factor is the rich natural resources of the Sudan, notably as a country for growing cotton. Still another is the fear that the Sudan, if independent, might undertake to draw off the water of the Nile for irrigation, thereby reducing the supply that comes down to Egypt.

For the time being the Egyptians may be able to stave off the Sudanese movement for independence. It would seem, however, that in the long run they are bound to lose out.

NEGRO ADVANCES

The Negro's chances of getting a good education are gaining in the South. Last fall, according to the Southern Conference Educational Fund, about two hundred Negroes were admitted to twenty-one Southern colleges and universities from which segregation laws had previously barred them.

The compelling power of Supreme Court decisions which have trimmed down the right to discriminate between the races has something to do with this change. Even greater, in all probability, is the growing recognition that the education of its citizens is an asset to the state, and that it is unwise for all to allow color to stand in the way.

WU'S WU IN CHINA

One thing of which China has no shortage is persons with the name Wu. General Wu Hsiu Chuan, the Communist delegate to the United Nations, has been giving away American good will to his country by his abuse of the United States. That makes something of a start come with the headline "Wu Foresees Chiang Triumph," over a report that a Wu anticipates the recovery of Formosa from the Communists. Surely no top Communist would admit publicly the possibility of defeat, no matter what he might honestly think. The answer, of course, is that it is a different Wu. The Chiang supporter is Governor K. C. Wu of Formosa.

There used to be an old joke, "50,000,000 Chinese can't be Wong." It now looks as if at least an appreciable number could be Wu.

CHRISTMAS AFTERTHOUGHT

I had a very difficult time getting a taxi, and upon inquiry, I discovered that on the eve of Christmas many taxi-drivers take to the garages when the Christmas office parties break up. They don't like the drunks, particularly drunken women, who dirty their cabs and sometimes leave without paying. They also dislike quarrelsome men who forget where they live.

Now, that is in New York and I suppose other large cities, but it is not Christmas. The office party has become a pollution of Christmas, a pagan revival of the feast to Bacchus. It may bore you to be reminded of high purposes, but the madness of the 1920's will surely die in the 1950's.

Maybe I am too austere. But a little austerity will do our country some good in these troubled times. Also a little thoughtfulness and a little respect for the decencies of life. Dr. Robert J. McCracken at the Riverside Church in New York said recently:

"The vision which first brought Europeans to these shores was far more than a narrow conception of self-interest. It was a vision of freedom, fraternity and integrity. Great moral and spiritual principles nourished that vision. The times are ripe for the rededication of this nation to its first ideals.

"The greatest danger that faces this country is the danger of moral lassitude—liberty turned to license, rights demanded and duties shirked, the moral sense deteriorating, the traditions and standards of the nation weakened, the spiritual forces within it losing ground."

Nothing could be more true. Office parties, with little ladies tipsying down the street or old men with cupid's bow intanglioed on their faces in maroon, will not save our country.

You say, let's have fun while we can! It is not a question of fun; it is a question of a lost horizon, of a nation that is suffering its first great military defeat and does not recognize it or its consequences. You say, what do you want me to do, cry in my beer? You might tighten your moral belt, brother. It will be tightened for you, anyhow—by the course of events.

Those sons of ours who lie in the Korean snows have as much right as we have to fun and life, to homes and little children. Think of them, sometimes. Each one of them might have been you or your son or your youngst daughter's husband. They are entitled to be mourned, if not in deep sorrow, surely in the resolve that they shall not have thrown their young lives into the Korean snow for nothing.

Perhaps you ask, "why does he preach at us? Who is he to tell us not to have a good time?"

It need not be the great who speak the word. Little men and women often feel the torture of improprieties. My friend, Igor Cassini, writing about a party that cost $25,000 in these days, must have been shocked at the figure. Then he resorts to the ancient aristocratic rationalization that such parties are a good thing because they help to circulate money. The economics of that would not pass.

That also helped to bring on the French revolution and the Russian revolution and the Spartacus movement in ancient Rome. Men can hunger and starve and even die for an ideal; they can only grow bitter against heartless stupidity, against stifling excess and concentrated egotism.

Christmas is a religious holiday with overtones of feeling even for those who are not Christians. It is a joyous but not a raucous holiday. It is a festival but not a debauch. It is a gift giving time, but not a Gargantuan madness. It is a glorification of the ideals of love and peace, not of license and lewdness. It is the holiday of children in families.

This perhaps is the time to resolve that whatever money there is to spend on office holidays will go to foundlings and orphans, to those who suffer from polio and heart diseases and tuberculosis and other illness about which we know so little.

Charity, love and justice—to these we can give of our surplus in times that are troubled as ours are. Toughen up, fellow citizens! The politicians have not told you, but for seven years, trouble has been in the making and it takes real men and women to face it bravely.

CURING HOPELESS MENTAL CASES

A few years ago I quoted the statement of a high authority in which he said that within 50 years of that date, one-half of the citizens of the world would be needed to look after the other half, owing to the great increase in mental disease. Soon after this statement was made, the shock method—insulin, metrazol, electric—became known and thousands of former mental patients are now home and at their former occupations, thanks to this treatment.

While shock treatment cures or greatly helps mental patients who behave oddly and cannot get along with others or make a living for themselves or their families, it does not help many of the seriously disturbed mental cases in which there is a change in the brain structure, which disturbance causes severe depression, deep grief, or intractable pain. Fortunately, by a small operation, cutting a nerve or nerves supplying the parts of the brain which control depression, grief, and pain, thousands of these patients have been discharged from hospital to their homes and many to their former occupations.

So successful is this treatment, lobotomy, being performed all over the world, with the great majority of patients able to leave hospital, that, together with the shock treatment, our mental institutions should not be increasing in number of patients and size as they have been doing during the past few years. Very few deaths occur from this simple operation performed by neurosurgeons.

Some idea of how lobotomy has established itself among psychiatrists and brain surgeons can be seen from the various medical journals published in America and Europe, all of which show the success of this treatment with very few failures.

What can be considered a typical result of treatment of mental cases by lobotomy is reported in the American Journal of Psychiatry by Drs. Jane E. Oltman, Bernard S. Brody, Samuel Friedman and William F. Green (Newton, Conn.) There were 107 patients who underwent the operation, half of whom had failed to improve under shock treatment. Forty patients were able to leave the hospital, 29 as free of symptoms or greatly improved, 9 as improved, and 3 slightly improved, that is 56 per cent. When we think that all forms of treatment, including shock treatment, had failed to help this large percentage of "hopeless cases," we can realize what lobotomy has meant to patients and their families.

He's Not Fireproof, Either

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington — Hottest debate that has torn Republican ranks in years was touched off by the hands-off-Europe speech of Herber Hoover. Lines are already being drawn inside GOP congressional cloakrooms for and against the ex-president's proposals.

So far, two interesting trends have developed:

1. Taft and Dewey, two presidential contenders, are sure to head up the two isolationist and nonisolationist wings of the party. Governor Dewey has been on the telephone to Washington privately several times a week trying to keep the bipartisan policy on an even keel. This is one reason why Senator Ives of New York, whom Dewey put in the U. S. Senate, has eased up on his administration attacks.

2. Unless elder statesman Vandenberg gets back to work, which is highly doubtful, the Republican party is likely to split into two vigorously differing, perhaps bitter groups.

A curtain-raiser on how GOP senators feel about foreign policy was the debate on Secretary of State Acheson which took place behind the closed doors of the Republican Senate Caucus. This was much more vehement than leaked to the press, the keynote being set by Senator Taft.

Angry Taft

"I do not want any more of this consulting with the administration," he told colleagues. "I see no reason to consult as long as Harry Truman is in the White House. Our duty as Republicans is to criticize, and I think that ought to be made clear in this resolution."

Taft's angry outburst came after Sen. Owen Brewster had proposed that the resolution condemning Acheson be postponed at least until after the Brussels conference.

"This is exactly the right time to pass the resolution, before Acheson goes to the conference," Taft countered, his eyes bristling. "We don't want any more of him. All this soft talk against weakening Acheson is nonsense. We ought to weaken him. I don't want any agreement he will negotiate. That's been our trouble—Acheson and his agreements."

Bourke Hickenlooper of Iowa backed up Taft. "Our soldiers are dying because of Acheson," he observed.

However, Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon differed. "We have no right to pull the rug out from under Acheson just before he goes to Brussels," Morse argued. "These are private quarrels and we ought not to advertise them to the world."

Chan Gurney of South Dakota, ex-chairman of the armed services committee, also tried to calm down the meeting.

"This is a time for us to act like Americans, not like partisan Republicans," he said. Taft glared at Gurney as if the South Dakotan meant this as a personal crack.

Oil on Water

Lean Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts moved to pour oil on the troubled waters by proposing a substitute resolution which called for reorganization of the State Department from top to bottom without naming Acheson.

In the argument that followed 15 senators—the isolationist bloc—agreed with Taft. One of them, Arthur Watkins of Utah, shook has head: "This war just shows how the chickens have come to roost for the internationalists."

When it came time to decide on the straight oust-Acheson resolution, George Malone of Nevada, usually an isolationist, commented: "I think this is a mistake, but if we can get any action from the administration I'll vote for it."

Note—Among the anti isolationist Republicans—in addition to Saltonstall, Morse and Gurney—are: Tobey of New Hampshire, Smith of New Jersey, Smith of Maine, Aiken of Vermont, Gordon of Oregon, Lodge of Massachusetts, Hendrickson of New Jersey, with usually Thye of Minnesota and hitherto Ives of New York.

Capital News Capsules

Anti-Semitic Smear—Secretary of Defense George Marshall was so grateful for the hard, digging work of the FBI in running down the unfair smearing of Assistant Defense Secretary Anna Rosenberg that he sent Truman a long letter praising the G-men. FBI agents worked around the clock to dig up the facts revealing that Gerald L. K. Smith, Sen. Joe McCarthy, Radio Commentator Fulton Lewis and the perjured testimony were back of the smear. . . . Among the most indignant members of the Senate Armed Services Committee regarding this unfair conspiracy were Republican George Cain of Washington with Conservative Southern Democrats Dick Russell of Georgia and Harry Byrd of Virginia.

Herbert Hoover Forgot—Diplomats point out that one thing Herbert Hoover forgot when he urged a hands-off policy for western Europe was the story of iron and steel. Russia's real achillies' heel is steel. She and her satellites produce less than 28,000,000 tons a year, while we produce about a hundred million. But if Russia should take over the great steel resources of the Ruhr and Rhineland, she would have, next to ours, the greatest steel resources in the world....Hoover, an engineer, apparently forgot this.

European Pessimism—Prior to the Brussels conference and the appointment of Eisenhower, U. S. diplomats all over Europe had cabled that a wave of defeatism was sweeping Atlantic Pact Nations. Morale was lower than at any time since Pearl Harbor, with the Communists planning to take advantage of it by staking paralyzing strikes and riots. The Brussels conference has now changed the picture somewhat, though the Korean debacle has left unremovable scars.

More German U-Boats—Foreign Minister Bevin has proposed that West Germany be permitted to build the once-dreaded U-boats again. Bevin told Secretary Acheson at Brussels that Germany could build better submarines than any nation in the world, so the shipyards of Hamburg and Bremen should be put to work to catch up with the Russians who now have almost 400 modern subs ....some diplomats marveled that England, twice nearly starved out by German submarines, should now make this proposal.

Strategy of U. N. Is to Trap 500,000 Reds By Bombing Long Supply Lines in Korea

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Dec. 29—Air power—and specifically strategic bombing—is going to have its turn now in Korea.

The great feat of the U. S. Navy, in accomplishing without a mishap the evacuation of 250,000 troops and civilians through the Port of Hungnam, means that the same curtain of naval fire could be used at any other seaport in Korea if it should become necessary to redeploy troops again. Fear of being pushed out of Korea precipitately can be dismissed.

Bolstered by this new confidence, the military effort of the United Nations can be concentrated on the use of air power against the Chinese offensive. Meanwhile, our ground troops will play a defensive role.

The so-called strategic air warfare—which means the bombing of enemy communication lines and supply stations—has not had an opportunity heretofore to prove itself in Korea because the enemy forces until recently have been relatively small and supplies have been moved over short distances mostly at night.

Now, however, with a North Korean-Chinese Army massed along or below the 38th Parallel, estimated to number around 500,000, there must be a sizeable supply line and flow of ammunition over a distance of nearly 100 miles south of the Manchurian border. This enables the U.N. commanders to organize strategic missions and give the enemy a going-over which can turn the tide of battle.

The amount of air power available to the U.N. is considerably more than that of the enemy, though it is confidently expected that Soviet Russia will not be able to refuse the pleas of the Chinese Communists for more and more air support.

Air power in Korea comprises not only the heavy bombers of the U. S. Air Force but also the bombers that fly from the decks of the several big naval aircraft carriers roaming up and down both coast lines. All the air effort is coordinated from Tokyo insofar as strategic missions are concerned, but the planes used to protect the movement of our own troops are in direct touch with the ground command.

Since the beginning of the war in Korea, air power has encountered much unjust criticism in connection with its failure to stop the North Korean advance last summer. The difficulty was not with this instrument of war but with the conditions that existed in that particular area. Heavy bombers cannot do the job needed for close support of ground troops, and they never were intended for that purpose.

About the only valid criticism is that the U. S. Air Force did not previously give sufficient attention to ground-air operations. The answer given to this was that the funds were not adequate. The calculated risk was taken that strategic bombers to carry the atom bomb deserved higher priority.

Since the outbreak of the Korean war, however, adequate funds have been available and steps have been taken to build up the air power needed for close support of ground troops. At the same time, more funds have been furnished for strategic air warfare, too.

The planes of the U. S. Air Force in the Far East are not numerous enough to do all the jobs that are required of them, but there are enough available to take care of the targets behind the Chinese Communist lines. It is unfortunate from a military standpoint that bombing of the real bases across the Manchurian border is not permitted to U.N. airmen. Now, as the Chinese lines have lengthened, the enemy targets have suddenly increased. The U. S. Air Force, flying from a few fields in Korea, and the U. S. Naval Air Forces, flying from the decks of carriers, should be able to accomplish considerable destruction and perhaps disorganize the offensive itself.

In any event, the next big news that Americans will look for is the effect in the next several days and weeks of the use of heavy bombing planes north of the 150-mile U.N. front. Another phase of the war will be carried on by heavy gunfire from the warships of the navy, which are able to drop shells far enough inland to destroy some of the main railroad lines.

But it is to be largely the air force's show from now on, and there are high hopes that strategic warfare will demonstrate that, while it alone cannot win a battle, it can disrupt an opposing army offensive and enable ground troops to capitalize on the disorganization of the enemy.

San Pedro, Calif. (AP) — From trained man-killer to messenger of mercy, that's the story of Pvt. Alf. A handsome, jet-black German shepherd, Pvt. Alf spent five years of World War 2 guarding planes at a Luftwaffe air base in Berlin. You'll find him now, transformed from a snarling menace into a friendly "medic," stationed at Ft. MacArthur here. His harness bears a red cross, and his pack is a medical kit. When the 409th Engineer Special Brigade was called from reserve status to active duty recently, Pvt. Alf answered the call to colors along with his master, Cpl. Joseph G. Certain. The two met in Berlin in 1948. Certain bought the dog from a former Luftwaffe officer for a few cartons of cigarettes.

BABSON on BUSINESS

BUSINESS AND FINANCIAL OUTLOOK FOR 1951

1. Excluding defense orders, the total business volume in 1951 will be less than that for 1950. However, national income in 1951 will be the highest ever recorded, as war orders take the place of peace production and high prices prevail.

More Government Controls Coming

2. The outstanding feature of 1951 will be the ever-increasing interference of the government in the lives of businessmen and consumers.

3. The administration and its economic advisors are firmly convinced that radical inflation is about to break out next year. But the "brain trusters" are overlooking the fact that the boom is already old and that it was creaking badly when the Korean war broke out. War postponed the downturn which would have taken place much sooner. The date of the slide has only moved ahead.

4. Rushing to catch up on its neglected defense program, the administration is anxious to shrink business volume to an unnecessary degree. Efforts at first will be along the line of tighter credit curbs, such as restrictions on mortgage and installment loans and increased bank reserve requirements.

5. As 1951 wears on, the effect of credit controls will cause a decline in legitimate business. Civilian production will decline more than armament production will increase. The public may then cry, "This is a government-made slump; let's get rid of the controls!"

6. If in 1951 it becomes evident that business is declining too fast as a result of government curbs, the planners at Washington may rush their patient into an oxygen tent.

Labor Outlook Will Continue Tight

7. Most labor groups will not be successful in getting a sixth round of wage increases in 1951. Although there may be more strikes in the first part of 1951, there will be fewer for the whole year as compared with 1950.

8. Tightness in the labor supply will be continued as the year wears on, particularly of highly-skilled workers.

9. The Taft-Hartley Law will not be repealed during 1951 but may be amended. The administrators of the law will continue to wink at some of its clauses.

Commodity Prices Will Remain Firm

10. Wholesale prices of many commodities will be marked by a mild decline in 1951 when compared with the price level for December 31, 1950. In some lines the drop may be quite steep from the high levels of late 1950. Retail prices for 1951, I do not now forecast.

11. The year 1951 should prove an excellent time to keep a tight grip on inventories. Commodity speculation for the rise will not pay in 1951. Furthermore, our expanding stockpiles of strategic materials present a real price threat in the event of a peace scare. Such stockpiles could then act strongly as a depressant on prices.

12. The cost of living will remain high during 1951. This prediction recognizes that living costs next year may be above the lower

AMERICA AT SEA

The condition of the American fleet of merchant ships continues to worry some of the leading figures in the shipping industry. A recent report of the Joint Committee for the American Marine compares the 1950 fleets of the United States and other important maritime nations with those of 1939. This shows that the active American fleet is larger now than just before World War 2, including in the count government-owned vessels chartered for private fleet alone is smaller in number of vessels. Only one other of the major maritime nations, Sweden, has a larger fleet now. All of the others are smaller in numbers.

A notable fact is that almost all of the fleets are larger in tonnage although most are smaller in numbers of ships. This is a result of the persistent trend to make ships, like other things, bigger.

Two things give chief concern to American shippers. One is the small number of fast, modern passenger ships in the American fleet. This hinders American ability to compete in that particular field of maritime service and also is a factor to be considered in event of war. Passenger ships then become troop ships. The other source of concern is the decline in the amount of our foreign trade carried in our own ships. It rose to a high point during the war, and in 1946 over 67 per cent of our foreign trade moved in ships carrying the American Flag. Now the proportion is less than half.

These two points suggest that the United States again is tending to become dependent on the fleets of other nations. With our reliance on the seas for both trade and defense, that is not good.

NEW SOURCE OF TROUBLE

Egypt and the Sudan are at odds. The Sudan is nominally under the joint rule of Egypt and Great Britain. Actually the real control is exercised by the British. The Sudanese get along well enough with Britain, but they dislike the Egyptians, and do not wish to be ruled by them. To get rid of any possibility of Egyptian rule, a motion has been introduced in the Sudanese parliament, supported by fifty members, calling for immediate self-government, presumably under some sort of British supervision. The Egyptians think they see the loss of the Sudan looming up, and do not wish to have self-government so much as discussed.

The pride of possession has something to do with this Egyptian stand. Another factor is the rich natural resources of the Sudan, notably as a country for growing cotton. Still another is the fear that the Sudan, if independent, might undertake to draw off the water of the Nile for irrigation, thereby reducing the supply that comes down to Egypt.

For the time being the Egyptians may be able to stave off the Sudanese movement for independence. It would seem, however, that in the long run they are bound to lose out.

NEGRO ADVANCES

The Negro's chances of getting a good education are gaining in the South. Last fall, according to the Southern Conference Educational Fund, about two hundred Negroes were admitted to twenty-one Southern colleges and universities from which segregation laws had previously barred them.

The compelling power of Supreme Court decisions which have trimmed down the right to discriminate between the races has something to do with this change. Even greater, in all probability, is the growing recognition that the education of its citizens is an asset to the state, and that it is unwise for all to allow color to stand in the way.

WU'S WU IN CHINA

One thing of which China has no shortage is persons with the name Wu. General Wu Hsiu Chuan, the Communist delegate to the United Nations, has been casting away American good will to his country by his abuse of the United States. That makes something of a start come with the headline "Wu Foresees Chiang Triumph," over a report that a Wu anticipates the recovery of Formosa from the Communists. Surely no top Communist would admit publicly the possibility of defeat; no matter what he might secretly feel. The answer, of course, is that it is a different Wu. The Chiang supporter is Governor K. C. Wu of Formosa.

There used to be an old joke, "50,000,000 Chinese can't be Wong." It now looks as if at least an appreciable number could be Wu.

'These Days'

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

CHRISTMAS AFTERTHOUGHT

I had a very difficult time getting a taxi, and upon inquiry, I discovered that on the eve of Christmas many taxi-drivers take to the garages when the Christmas office parties break up. They don't like the drunks, particularly drunken women, who dirty their cabs and sometimes leave without paying. They also dislike quarrelsome men who forget where they live.

Now, that is in New York and I suppose other large cities, but it is not Christmas. The office party has become a pollution of Christmas, a pagan revival of the feast to Bacchus. It may bore you to be reminded of high purposes, but the madness of the 1920's will surely die in the 1950's.

Maybe I am too austere. But a little austerity will do our country some good in these troubled times. Also a little thoughtfulness and a little respect for the decencies of life. Dr. Robert J. McCracken at the Riverside Church in New York said recently:

"The vision which first brought Europeans to these shores was far more than a narrow conception of self-interest. It was a vision of freedom, fraternity and integrity. Great moral and spiritual principles nourished that vision. The times are ripe for the rededication of this nation to its first ideals.

"The greatest danger that faces this country is the danger of moral lassitude—liberty turned to license, rights demanded and duties shirked, the moral sense deteriorating, the traditions and standards of the nation weakened, the spiritual forces within it losing ground."

Nothing could be more true. Office parties, with little ladies tipsying down the street or old men with cupid's bow intanglioed on their faces in maroon, will not save our country.

You say, let's have fun while we can! It is not a question of fun; it is a question of a lost horizon, of a nation that is suffering its first great military defeat and does not recognize it or its consequences. You say, what do you want me to do, cry in my beer? You might tighten your moral belt, brother. It will be tightened for you, anyhow—by the course of events.

Those sons of ours who lie in the Korean snows have as much right as we have to fun and life, to homes and little children. Think of them, sometimes. Each one of them might have been you or your son or your youngest daughter's husband. They are entitled to be mourned, if not in deep sorrow, surely in the resolve that they shall not have thrown their young lives into the Korean snow for nothing.

Perhaps you ask, "why does he preach at us? Who is he to tell us not to have a good time?"

It need not be the great who speak the word. Little men and women often feel the torture of improprieties. My friend, Igor Cassini, writing about a party that cost $25,000 in these days, must have been shocked at the figure. Then he resorts to the ancient aristocratic rationalization that such parties are a good thing because they help to circulate money. The economics of that would not pass.

That also helped to bring on the French revolution and the Russian revolution and the Spartacus movement in ancient Rome. Men can hunger and starve and even die for an ideal; they can only grow bitter against heartless stupidity, against stifling excess and concentrated egotism.

Christmas is a religious holiday with overtones of feeling even for those who are not Christians. It is a joyous but not a raucous holiday. It is a festival but not a debauch. It is a gift giving time, but not a Gargantuan madness. It is a glorification of the ideals of love and peace, not of license and lewdness. It is the holiday of children in families.

This perhaps is the time to resolve that whatever money there is to spend on office holidays will go to foundlings and orphans, to those who suffer from polio and heart diseases and tuberculosis and other illness about which we know so little.

Charity, love and justice—to these we can give of our surplus in times that are troubled as ours are. Toughen up, fellow citizens! The politicians have not told you, but for seven years, trouble has been in the making and it takes real men and women to face it bravely.

CURING HOPELESS MENTAL CASES

A few years ago I quoted the statement of a high authority in which he said that within 50 years of that date, one-half of the citizens of the world would be needed to look after the other half, owing to the great increase in mental disease. Soon after this statement was made, the shock method—insulin, metrazol, electric—became known and thousands of former mental patients are now home and at their former occupations, thanks to this treatment.

While shock treatment cures or greatly helps mental patients who behave oddly and cannot get along with others or make a living for themselves or their families, it does not help many of the seriously disturbed mental cases in which there is a change in the brain structure, which disturbance causes severe depression, deep grief, or intractable pain. Fortunately, by a small operation, cutting a nerve or nerves supplying the parts of the brain which control depression, grief, and pain, thousands of these patients have been discharged from hospital to their homes and many to their former occupations.

So successful is this treatment, lobotomy, being performed all over the world, with the great majority of patients able to leave hospital, that, together with the shock treatment, our mental institutions should not be increasing in number of patients and size as they have been doing during the past few years. Very few deaths occur from this simple operation performed by neurosurgeons.

Some idea of how lobotomy has established itself among psychiatrists and brain surgeons can be seen from the various medical journals published in America and Europe, all of which show the success of this treatment with very few failures.

What can be considered a typical result of treatment of mental cases by lobotomy is reported in the American Journal of Psychiatry by Drs. Jane E. Oltman, Bernard S. Brody, Samuel Friedman and William F. Green (Newton, Conn.) There were 107 patients who underwent the operation, half of whom had failed to improve under shock treatment. Forty patients were able to leave the hospital, 28 as free of symptoms or greatly improved, 9 as improved, and 3 slightly improved, that is 56 per cent. When we think that all forms of treatment, including shock treatment, had failed to help this large percentage of "hopeless cases," we can realize what lobotomy has meant to patients and their families.

Angry Taft

"I do not want any more of this consulting with the administration," he told colleagues. "I see no reason to consult as long as Harry Truman is in the White House. Our duty as Republicans is to criticize, and I think that ought to be made clear in this resolution."

Taft's angry outburst came after Sen. Owen Brewster had proposed that the resolution condemning Acheson be postponed at least until after the Brussels conference.

"This is exactly the right time to pass the resolution, before Acheson goes to the conference," Taft countered, his eyes bristling. "We don't want any more of him. All this soft talk against weakening Acheson is nonsense. We ought to weaken him. I don't want any agreement he will negotiate. That's been our trouble—Acheson and his agreements."

Bourke Hickenlooper of Iowa backed up Taft. "Our soldiers are dying because of Acheson," he observed.

However, Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon differed. "We have no right to pull the rug out from under Acheson just before he goes to Brussels," Morse argued. "These are private quarrels and we ought not to advertise them to the world."

Chan Gurney of South Dakota, ex-chairman of the armed services committee, also tried to calm down the meeting.

"This is a time for us to act like Americans, not like partisan Republicans," he said. Taft glared at Gurney as if the South Dakotan meant this as a personal crack.

Oil on Water

Lean Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts moved to pour oil on the troubled waters by proposing a substitute resolution which called for reorganization of the State Department from top to bottom without naming Acheson.

In the argument that followed 15 senators—the isolationist bloc—agreed with Taft. One of them, Arthur Watkins of Utah, shook has head: "This war just shows how the chickens have come to roost for the internationalists."

When it came time to decide on the straight oust-Acheson resolution, George Malone of Nevada, usually an isolationist, commented: "I think this is a mistake, but if we can get any action from the administration I'll vote for it."

Note—Among the anti isolationist Republicans—in addition to Saltonstall, Morse and Gurney—are: Tobey of New Hampshire, Smith of New Jersey, Smith of Maine, Aiken of Vermont, Gordon of Oregon, Lodge of Massachusetts, Hendrickson of New Jersey, with usually Thye of Minnesota and hitherto Ives of New York.

Anti-Semitic Smear—Secretary of Defense George Marshall was so grateful for the hard, digging work of the FBI in running down the unfair smearing of Assistant Defense Secretary Anna Rosenberg that he sent Truman a long letter praising the G-men. FBI agents worked around the clock to dig up the facts revealing that Gerald L. K. Smith, Sen. Joe McCarthy, Radio Commentator Fulton Lewis and the perjured testimony were back of the smear. . . . Among the most indignant members of the Senate Armed Services Committee regarding this unfair conspiracy were Republican George Cain of Washington with Conservative Southern Democrats Dick Russell of Georgia and Harry Byrd of Virginia.

Herbert Hoover forgot—Diplomats point out that one thing Herbert Hoover forgot when he urged a hands-off policy for western Europe was the story of iron and steel. Russia's real achillies' heel is steel. She and her satellites produce less than 28,000,000 tons a year, while we produce about a hundred million. But if Russia should take over the great steel resources of the Ruhr and Rhineland, she would have, next to ours, the greatest steel resources in the world....Hoover, an engineer, apparently forgot this.

European Pessimism—Prior to the Brussels conference and the appointment of Eisenhower, U. S. diplomats all over Europe had cabled that a wave of defeatism was sweeping Atlantic Pact Nations. Morale was lower than at any time since Pearl Harbor, with the Communists planning to take advantage of it by staking paralyzing strikes and riots. The Brussels conference has now changed the picture somewhat, though the Korean debacle has left unremovable scars.

More German U-Boats—Foreign Minister Bevin has proposed that West Germany be permitted to build the once-dreaded U-boats again. Bevin told Secretary Acheson at Brussels that Germany could build better submarines than any nation in the world, so the shipyards of Hamburg and Bremen should be put to work to catch up with the Russians who now have almost 400 modern subs ....some diplomats marveled that England, twice nearly starved out by German submarines, should now make this proposal.

Strategy of U. N. Is to Trap 500,000 Reds By Bombing Long Supply Lines in Korea

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Dec. 29—Air power—and specifically strategic bombing—is going to have its turn now in Korea.

The great feat of the U. S. Navy, in accomplishing without a mishap the evacuation of 250,000 troops and civilians through the Port of Hungnam, means that the same curtain of naval fire could be used at any other seaport in Korea if it should become necessary to redeploy troops again. Fear of being pushed out of Korea precipitately can be dismissed.

Bolstered by this new confidence, the military effort of the United Nations can be concentrated on the use of air power against the Chinese offensive. Meanwhile, our ground troops will play a defensive role.

The so-called strategic air warfare—which means the bombing of enemy communication lines and supply stations—has not had an opportunity heretofore to prove itself in Korea because the enemy forces until recently have been relatively small and supplies have been moved over short distances mostly at night.

Now, however, with a North Korean-Chinese Army massed along or below the 38th Parallel, estimated to number around 500,000, there must be a sizeable supply line and flow of ammunition over a distance of nearly 100 miles south of the Manchurian border. This enables the U.N. commanders to organize strategic missions and give the enemy a going-over which can turn the tide of battle.

The amount of air power available to the U.N. is considerably more than that of the enemy, though it is confidently expected that Soviet Russia will not be able to refuse the pleas of the Chinese Communists for more and more air support.

Air power in Korea comprises not only the heavy bombers of the U. S. Air Force but also the bombers that fly from the decks of the several big naval aircraft carriers roaming up and down both coast lines. All the air effort is coordinated from Tokyo insofar as strategic missions are concerned, but the planes used to protect the movement of our own troops are in direct touch with the ground command.

Since the beginning of the war in Korea, air power has encountered much unjust criticism in connection with its failure to stop the North Korean advance last summer. The difficulty was not with this instrument of war but with the conditions that existed in that particular area. Heavy bombers cannot do the job needed for close support of ground troops, and they never were intended for that purpose.

About the only valid criticism is that the U. S. Air Force did not previously give sufficient attention to ground-air operations. The answer given to this was that the funds were not adequate. The calculated risk was taken that strategic bombers to carry the atom bomb deserved higher priority.

Since the outbreak of the Korean war, however, adequate funds have been available and steps have been taken to build up the air power needed for close support of ground troops. At the same time, more funds have been furnished for strategic air warfare, too.

The planes of the U. S. Air Force in the Far East are not numerous enough to do all the jobs that are required of them, but there are enough available to take care of the targets behind the Chinese Communist lines. It is unfortunate from a military standpoint that bombing of the real bases across the Manchurian border is not permitted to U.N. airmen. Now, as the Chinese lines have lengthened, the enemy targets have suddenly increased. The U. S. Air Force, flying from a few fields in Korea, and the U. S. Naval Air Forces, flying from the decks of carriers, should be able to accomplish considerable destruction and perhaps disorganize the offensive itself.

In any event, the next big news that Americans will look for is the effect in the next several days and weeks of the use of heavy bombing planes north of the 150-mile U.N. front. Another phase of the war will be carried on by heavy gunfire from the warships of the navy, which are able to drop shells far enough inland to destroy some of the main railroad lines.

But it is to be largely the air force's show from now on, and there are high hopes that strategic warfare will demonstrate that, while it alone cannot win a battle, it can disrupt an opposing army offensive and enable ground troops to capitalize on the disorganization of the enemy.

BABSON on BUSINESS

BUSINESS AND FINANCIAL OUTLOOK FOR 1951

1. Excluding defense orders, the total business volume in 1951 will be less than that for 1950. However, national income in 1951 will be the highest ever recorded, as war orders take the place of peace production and high prices prevail.

More Government Controls Coming

2. The outstanding feature of 1951 will be the ever-increasing interference of the government in the lives of businessmen and consumers.

3. The administration and its economic advisors are firmly convinced that radical inflation is about to break out next year. But the "brain trusters" are overlooking the fact that the boom is already old and that it was creaking badly when the Korean war broke out. War postponed the downturn which would have taken place much sooner. The date of the slide has only moved ahead.

4. Rushing to catch up on its neglected defense program, the administration is anxious to shrink business volume to an unnecessary degree. Efforts at first will be along the line of tighter credit curbs, such as restrictions on mortgage and installment loans and increased bank reserve requirements.

5. As 1951 wears on, the effect of credit controls will cause a decline in legitimate business. Civilian production will decline more than armament production will increase. The public may then cry, "This is a government-made slump; let's get rid of the controls!"

6. If in 1951 it becomes evident that business is declining too fast as a result of government curbs, the planners at Washington may rush their patient into an oxygen tent.

Labor Outlook Will Continue Tight

7. Most labor groups will not be successful in getting a sixth round of wage increases in 1951. Although there may be more strikes in the first part of 1951, there will be fewer for the whole year as compared with 1950.

8. Tightness in the labor supply will be continued as the year wears on, particularly of highly-skilled workers.

9. The Taft-Hartley Law will not be repealed during 1951 but may be amended. The administrators of the law will continue to wink at some of its clauses.

Commodity Prices Will Remain Firm

10. Wholesale prices of many commodities will be marked by a mild decline in 1951 when compared with the price level for December 31, 1950. In some lines the drop may be quite steep from the high levels of late 1950. Retail prices for 1951, I do not now forecast.

11. The year 1951 should prove an excellent time to keep a tight grip on inventories. Commodity speculation for the rise will not pay in 1951. Furthermore, our expanding stockpiles of strategic materials present a real price threat in the event of a peace scare. Such stockpiles could then act strongly as a depressant on prices.

12. The cost of living will remain high during 1951. This prediction recognizes that living costs next year may be above the lower

Public Hearing

ment of income to meet the climbing cost of living."

Former Seventh Ward Alderman Thomas Coughlin as president of the Volunteer Firemen's Association of the city asked that the mayor consider a budget provision which would provide helmets, raincoats and boots for volunteer fire companies.

Coughlin said he represented 800 volunteer firemen in the city. The work of the volunteers, he stressed, has been praised by those unfortunate enough to have serious fires, and "it is a known fact that the volunteer firemen are largely responsible for a low fire insurance rate in the city."

It is also known, Coughlin said, that the fire chief will not allow paid men to go in a burning building without proper equipment," and the same is true for volunteers.

The board of fire commissioners, at a recent meeting, favored getting the requested equipment he said, and he understood that it was in the budget, "and that you slashed it out . . . is that right mayor?" Then he asked. "Don't you as a volunteer fireman think we should receive some consideration. . . . Why should we have to equip ourselves?"

Says Idea New One

The mayor said he had been a volunteer fireman for several years and he knew the volunteers "do an exceptionally good job." The mayor said the idea that volunteers brought their own equipmen was new to him. The fire department furnishes equipment to the "one I belong to," he said.

"There are many things to consider in making up a budget," the mayor said. "I thought the amount suggested would be insufficient to supply all the volunteers, and I ask how it was to be distributed. I asked for suggestions and plans. I felt this was something new and worthy of consideration, and I think there should be a breakdown on how the money is to be used."

Coughlin contended that when he met with the fire commissioners it was explained how it was to be used and one suggestion called for allowing each volunteer fire company six sets of helmets, raincoats and boots to be placed on trucks."

Coughlin asked the mayor to reconsider this item for the budget and L. E. Dunn, 152 Washington avenue, who said he was on the committee which discussed the proposal with the fire board, supported Coughlin's argument.

Third Ward Alderman Edwin Radel wanted to know why the city laboratory showed a deficit of $6,500 and Mayor Newkirk explained that $9,000 had been put into the previous budget for materials and because of increased costs, $15,600 was spent. This item alone, accounted for most of it, he said.

Asks Why Raise Given

Radel also wanted to know why the salary of the assistant laboratory physician had been raised from $3,600 to $6,500. Dr. Derman later explained that when Dr. Anthony J. Tocco first came to the laboratory he was there for specialized training and was on a training basis. He was placed in psychology when another physician became ill. He commended his work and said that in the blood bank it was outstanding and he helped boost the income there from $7,000 to $14,000. The city had been getting away with something where the lower salary was concerned, he said.

A question by Mayor Newkirk later stressed the fact that Mrs. Alan Hanstein's work was also an important factor in building up the blood bank.

Radel's question on the general deficit of $17,079.80 brought from the mayor the explanation that $2,681.69 was the 1950 deficit, $12,847 was the deficit of 1949 brought on by estimates that were too low by various departments in December of that year, and $1,550.93 was a charge-off of anticipated revenue which did not come in.

Asks on Assessments

Fourth Ward Alderman John Buboltz wanted to know why the total assessed valuation of the city was $32,103,885 on Jan. 1, 1949 while it is estimated at $30,834,940 for Jan. 1, 1951, a loss amounting to $1,268,945.

Mayor Newkirk said the demolition of buildings on the Broadway crossing project area, veterans exemptions and many individual losses on buildings and properties, accounted for the reduced total.

Buboltz cited building permit totals in the city which he said were $1,816,638 in 1949, and $4,485,200 in estimated cost in 1950.

The mayor stressed that estimates based on building permits failed to bring up the total assessed valuation because many estimates are on properties that are exempt from taxation, and others cannot be added to the tax roll until structures are completed.

Buboltz also asked why despite a one-third increase in assessed values in 1948, and the increased tax rates since that time, "it appears that the bonded indebtedness of the city of Kingston has gone from $1,625,000 to $2,937,000 at the present time. This is an increase of $1,320,000. . . . What has this money been used for."

The biggest item, the mayor said was $1,250,000 for the George Washington School.

Query on Signals

Tenth Ward Alderman James J. Carroll wanted to know if $2,700 in the budget for traffic purposes was for traffic signals, and the mayor said "in the majority of cases" it would be for that.

The alderman also asked what the city was realizing on parking meter advertising and was told that the project has been in effect for four months and to date amounts to about $150 a month.

Commander A. S. Hickey, U.S.N., retired, wanted to know how many of the group were there as taxpayers without special interests; those who represented no city group or individual, and about half of the group stood up.

Survey Proposed

Walter Demarumna said he was concerned with the general increase in city government because higher tax rates might tend to discourage home building in the city. He proposed a scientific survey to "bring the assessment in line." He suggested also that the city might do well to have a local group similar to the Hoover Commission on a national basis for "consolidation of some departments."

W. L. Rider, 75 Lounsbery Place, said it was "becoming increasingly hard for people to own property and maintain real estate in the city," and he wanted to know if the mayor had considered means of taking the burden off real estate.

The mayor indicated that lots of consideration had been given to that proposal but nothing feasible had developed. The mayor then indicated that the cost of government, while increasing, was not doing so in proportion to earning power in the city. He said he was open to all suggestions that would relieve the tax burden.

Alderman Radel, just prior to the close of the hearing, recommended that the mayor revise his five per cent across-the-board bonus plan to amount to from $200 to $240 in salary increases.

"Are you in favor of raising the tax rate," the mayor asked.

"I am in favor of raising salaries," Radel said.

The mayor then asked for suggestions, and Radel said he had just received a copy of the proposed budget, and had not had sufficient time to study it. The mayor said copies had been available for about a week.

Old Ice for Banquet

Juneau, Alaska, Dec. 29 (AP)—Two hundred pounds of million-year-old cocktail ice is winging its way to New York city. The ice, from ages-old Mendenhall Glacier near here, was ordered for the Explorers Club annual banquet at the Hotel Roosevelt in New York Jan. 13. Maynard Miller, club member and director of the Juneau Icecap Research Project with offices at (500 Riverside Drive) New York, ordered the antique drink-chiller. It was put aboard a Pan American plane for Seattle last night, whence United Air Lines will haul the chilly chunk eastward.

Will Honor Truman

Washington, Dec. 29 (AP)—President Truman will receive the Woodrow Wilson Award for distinguished service for his work in behalf of the United Nations. The bronze plaque will be presented to him Jan. 10, the 31st anniversary of the birth of the League of Nations, of which the late President Wilson was the principal founder. The award was made to Mr. Truman "in recognition of his wisdom, courage, and leadership in strengthening the U.N. as an effective instrument of world law."

Will Delay French

Paris, Dec. 29 (AP)—Socialist opposition will delay for "many months" any French move to follow the United States and Britain in restoring full diplomatic relations with Spain, informed sources say. France's Socialist Party is authoritatively reported ready to quit Premier Rene Pleven's coalition cabinet if a French ambassador to Spain is appointed. A Socialist walkout would leave the cabinet with too little support to retain office.

Will Ask Right to Save Trees Felled by Wind

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 29 (AP)—The 1951 Legislature will be asked to authorize private logging firms to salvage the innumerable trees felled in the Adirondack forest preserve by the big blow last month.

Attorney General Nathaniel Goldstein said yesterday the state could remove the timber but the Legislature's permission was needed before the Conservation Department could contract with private concerns to do the work and sell the timber.

The department had requested Goldstein's opinion in view of the state constitution's provision that the preserve "shall be forever kept as wild forest lands" and "shall not be leased, sold or exchanged * * * nor shall the timber thereon be sold, removed or destroyed."

The wind, rain and snow storm that whipped the state Nov. 25 felled from 25 to 100 per cent of the timber on 420,000 acres in the Adirondacks, Conservation Commissioner Perry B. Duryea said last night. The original estimate was 250,000 acres.

Duryea said he would ask the 1951 Legislature to act.

in bonds to finance construction of the self-liquidating highway. If the new Legislature grants expected approval, the proposed amendment will be voted on by the people next fall.

Administration sources claim that putting the state's credit behind thruway bonds will mean an overall saving of between $75,000,000 and $100,000 in financing the project. It will mean saving through lower interest rates.

Dewey will contend that there is desperate need for the thruway to rush emergency equipment to various sections of the state and to speed the outpourings of expanded defense production between the Great Lakes and the Atlantic Seaboard.

Thirteen miles of the four and six-lane expressway have been completed. Sixty-four miles are under construction.

Positive action by the Legislature is not required to continue the State Residential Rent Control program. The present law expires June 30, 1952.

However, the freeze on rents expires next March. Rent Administrator Joseph D. McGoldrick will submit a plan to the Legislature next month to become effective March 1.

His plan, expected to follow the present pattern generally, becomes effective automatically unless the Legislature disapproves it by joint resolution before Feb. 15.

Hiss Still on Bail

New York, Dec. 29 (AP)—In a two-to-one decision, the U. S. Court of Appeals yesterday allowed Alger Hiss to continue free in $10,000 bail until his perjury conviction is ruled on by the U. S. Supreme Court. Hiss, former high State Department aide, was convicted early this year of lying when he swore he never gave government secrets to ex-Communist spy courier Whittaker Chambers. He was sentenced to five years.

Japan Seen . . .

friends; but they do have permanent interests. Ours and the Japanese, at this hour at least, are practically identical.

No Troops in Field

In spite of Russian propaganda claims, and Japanese desires, no Japanese troops are in the field in Korea today. We are using the great Japanese air and naval bases in fighting this war. Japanese personnel are employed as guards, mechanics, truck drivers and in many other ways.

It is an incongruous fact that in the main U.N. base for the Korean war is the territory of a nation still, technically, an "enemy."

And although it was necessary practically to strip the country of our whole garrison force—four under-strength infantry divisions—there have been no disturbances, no incidents, no efforts by the Japanese to take advantage of that fact. (There have been some ominous outbreaks fomented by Korean Communists living in Japan.)

What are the results of the occupation?

I do not believe—and I put this in the first-person because it is a personal appraisal — that the theory or practice of "democracy" has penetrated very deeply into Japanese consciousness. So far as I could tell, the emperor is still their great symbol of authority and leadership. Their tendency still is to believe in the value of a ruling class, rather than in the wisdom of the masses.

Some Disagree

Some Americans disagree with this view. Only time will tell which is correct.

But in its physical aspects, the occupation has been almost a miracle, a story without precedent anywhere in history.

American engineers, doctors, scientists and business men—in short, the technicians — have brought to Japan a degree of comfort and safety never before known. They have opened wide new vistas.

They have sharply cut back the former high mortality rate of infants and older people. A whole new concept of diet, nutrition, the prevention of disease, and public health in general, has come into being. On a personal basis, a great many Americans provide Japanese mothers with food-fortifiers for their children. The results already are apparent.

In terms of consumer goods, there are actually more articles in the shops than there were ten years ago when I last previously saw the country. You see more metals and more rubber goods, tires, for example.

Is In Fair Shape

Financially, the country is in fair shape and improving steadily. It has a balanced budget, and the currency is getting stronger.

Joseph M. Dodge, of Detroit, a budget expert, is largely responsible for this. He quotes Japan's finance minister to illustrate the increasing improvement in the country's financial position. "When a burglar breaks into a house now," the minister said, "he actually steals money."

What about the future, when the occupation ends and the Americans leave?

Japan needs the United States, both as a market and as a source of raw materials. Until they can be re-armed, the Japanese will need American military protection against the ancient enemies, Russia and China.

Vice versa, the United States, and all the other democracies, need Japan as the great balancing factor against communism in the Orient. With their enormous industrial and military strength, plus dynamic energy and great ingenuity, Japan can effectively counter Communist operations in Asia.

The interests are inter-dependent. As long as they remain so, Japan will be our most effective ally.

His View on Bomb

York, England, Dec. 29 (AP)—The Archbishop of York, Dr. Cyril F. Garbett, said today use of the atom bomb could be justified only as a "final attempt to save western civilization from catastrophic ruin by unprovoked aggression." The archbishop — second-ranking prelate in the Church of England—declared in his monthly diocesan letter that atom bombing of the Chinese Communists in Korea would lead to an "irreparable breach" between East and West. He added the "very thought of the possibility of war" with the "patient, long-suffering people" of China "is hateful." The prelate called for another attempt "at the earliest possible moment and at the highest level" for an agreement with Soviet Russia. "Possibly even more urgent," he declared, "is the necessity of a good understanding with China."

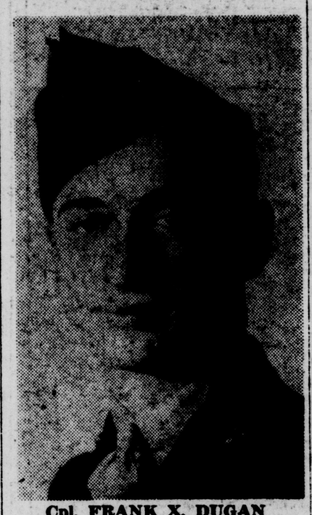
Shortage Only in U. S.

Washington, Dec. 29 (AP)— The army said yesterday there is a "limited shortage" of combat boots and gloves for troops training in this country, but no shortages on the Korean war front. An army spokesman said the shortages were in "some sizes" and resulted from meeting "urgent requisitions from the Far East." The spokesman acknowledged that the army was selling both gloves and combat shoes as surplus three years ago, but declared: "We were told to get rid of them because we had no place to store them. Some went to surplus sales, others went out in foreign aid programs."

Evacuation Hurts

Singapore, Dec. 29 (AP)—Evacuation of French civilians from Communist-threatened North Indochina is disrupting French shipping and air transportation in the Far East, a shipping official said here today. The strain is due to a Dec. 4 decree that all French women and children must leave the Hanoi and Haiphong areas, threatened by Communist-led Vietmin rebels. Between 3,000 and 4,000 persons are affected in the Hanoi section and several hundred at Haiphong. The French government is chartering French ships and planes to carry out the removal.

2nd Brother Dies



Cpl. FRANK X. DUGAN

His death in Korea is the second war casualty for the Dugan family of 58 Brewster street.

Corporal Frank X. Dugan was killed December 7, fighting with a U. S. Marine Corps division in the Chosin reservoir section of North Korea.

Announcement of his death was delivered Wednesday to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James J. Dugan, who lost a son, Pfc. James J. Dugan on Okinawa, April 6, 1945.

Another son, Harold S. Dugan, is a sergeant in the marines at LeJeune, N. C.

The three Dugan brothers chose the marines as their favorite branch of the armed forces and the great sacrifice that has saddened the family home emphasizes that they served with distinction.

Today is Corporal Dugan's birthday. He would have been 24 years old if he had lived.

James J. Dugan, father of the two heroes, served in both World Wars, and is a local mail-carrier.

Mrs. Dugan, mother of the boys, is the former Louise Seitz.

Surviving besides the parents and Sergeant Harold S. Dugan are another brother, Thomas F. Dugan at home and a sister, Mrs. James Laws of Snow Hill, Md.

Corporal Dugan was a member of St. Mary's Church and the Holy Name Society of the parish.

A requiem Mass for the repose of his soul will be offered Tuesday at 9 a. m. in St. Mary's Church.

Freezing Rain Puts

possible to steer their vehicles to spread sand on highways.

Pelted With Rain

Southeastern New York was pelted with freezing rain, which was expected to spread to north and south central sections of the state during the day. Light snow was reported in some sections.

New Jersey state officials said the state's roads were extremely slippery and were lined with stalled cars. Moving traffic traveled at a snail's pace.

New York city's streets and sidewalks were dangerous slippery early in the day. A rise in temperature cleared most of the ice, but driving and walking were difficult because of the accumulated slush.

The weather caused cancellation of 82 flights at LaGuardia Field. Most of the trips were between New York and Boston or Washington, with some Chicago flights called off.

Small craft storm warnings were hoisted from Block Island, R. I., south of the Delaware Breakwater.

Brightest Year

Frankfurt, Germany, Dec. 29 (AP)—West Germany today headed toward the close of its brightest postwar economic year. Jean Cattier, chief of the ECA in western Germany, listed the most outstanding developments: 1. Expansion of West German industrial production by more than 40 per cent. 2. Tremendous rise in the sale of German goods on the world market. 3. The substantial increase in West German living standards. Cattier said in a prepared statement that the West Germany federal republic's industrial production went from 95 per cent of the 1936 level last January to 134 per cent in November, 1950. "Since the beginning of the Marshall Plan a total of $1,068,000,000 of goods and services have been authorized for allotments in western Germany," he said.

Not Like Poland

Windsor, Ont. Dec. 29 (AP)—The Poles in Poland may bite the tails off kittens, but Nicholas Kozubiak is spending five days in jail to realize it's not the custom here. Kozubiak was haled before Magistrate J. A. Hanrahan for using his teeth to de-tail three small felines. That's common practice in Kuzobiak's homeland, Poland, Defense Councel J. E. Zeron said, adding that his client had been drinking wine and did not remember the incident. "Whatever is the practice in Poland, I don't intend to put a stamp of approval on it here," replied the judge, meting out the five-day sentence.

Warnings Are Hoisted

Manila, Dec. 29 (AP)—Typhoon warnings were hoisted on Luzon Island tonight as a tropical storm with 85-mile winds swirled in from the sea. The fringe of the storm hit the southeastern coast this afternoon. The storm center, moving at 12 miles per hour, is expected to hit the southern Luzon coast early tomorrow.

All Bodies Picked Up

Manila, Friday, Dec. 29 (AP)—All recoverable bodies have been brought down from the 8,000-foot level of Mount Tabayoc, where a C-54 military transport crashed Dec. 19 with 37 persons aboard. They will be brought to Manila for identification. Mount Tabayoc is approximately 150 miles north of Manila.

Action Announced

The Federal Reserve Board's credit curb action was announced last night after banks had closed. Today the board called on industry for a more rapid switchover from civilian to defense production.

The board's money freeze means there will be less to lend to business firms, or to individuals who want to buy houses, autos, television sets, furniture, stock market securities, or anything else.

There was nothing in the order itself to raise interest rates for those who manage to get loans. Neither was there anything to prevent banks from raising those rates, although officials did not expect a rate rise.

The board's freeze was effected by raising "reserve requirements"—the proportion of deposits that member banks are required to post with federal reserve authorities as non-lendable reserves.

Account for Bulk

Reserve system member banks account for the great bulk of U. S. bank deposits and loans, although they constitute a minority of the nation's 15,000 banks. It is up to state banking authorities whether to apply a similar freeze to the remaining banks.

The board's crack-down on its members with a compulsory freeze — which will cut bank profits by cutting their lending capacity—amounted to conceding failure for board efforts to get banks to hold down lending voluntarily.

The board took some important risks in ordering the crack-down.

The most vital one was that banks might dump on the market government securities, in which they have invested huge sums, in order to get the extra cash they will be required to post—or to raise cash for making loans that pay higher interest.

Banks Might Resign

Another risk was that many banks might resign their membership in the Federal Reserve System to avoid being caught in the freeze and to take advantage of the easier requirements on state banks outside the system.

Although President Truman said at his news conference yesterday that it would take a long time to apply general price controls—if the government decides they are necessary—ESA said today it hoped to have most of its regional price-wage offices opened next month.

This move was assessed generally as preparation for strict controls if needed. ESA already has authority to impose price and wage ceilings and to order rollbacks. At present, however, it is seeking "voluntary compliance" from labor and management.

An official statement said the rubber order, effective today, is necessary for the government to take over buying and distribution of rubber "to safeguard the supply and to assure that it is distributed and utilized most advantageously to the national defense."

As an indirect effect, officials said, the removal of competing private buyers from the field should hold down rubber prices which have been soaring since the outbreak of the Korean war.

The action is expected to have little or no effect on users of tires or consumers of other rubber products.

Texas Girl Wins

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 29 (AP)—A Texas girl—Jeannine Holland, who models, acts, dances and makes her own clothes—is the 1951 "Maid of Cotton." The 21-year-old Houston beauty last night nosed out 18 other lovely lasses hoping to win the title and go on a tour of the United States, Europe and South America as the industry's good will ambassador. The first step for Miss Holland, a senior at Texas State College for Women, is a trip to New York city Tuesday to get her new cotton wardrobe and modeling instructions.

Auto Industry . . .

idled. This will bring total layoffs in Ford plants throughout the United States to about 13,000.

Studebaker Corp., at South Bend, Ind., has announced a 20 per cent cutback of automobiles and trucks during January.

Any further cutbacks in production are expected to hit the Detroit area the hardest. Although the auto industry has received an estimated $1,000,000,000 in defense contracts recently, most of the work is to be done in plants outside Detroit. So far most of the defense production has been assigned to new plant facilities with a minimum of interruption to auto output.

Automotive News reported it all depends on the foreign situation whether cutbacks will become more severe later in 1951. The trade paper estimated 1950 production at slightly over 8,000,000 cars and trucks. This is an all-time record by more than 1,000,000 units.

Public Hearing

ment of income to meet the climbing cost of living."

Former Seventh Ward Alderman Thomas Coughlin as president of the Volunteer Firemen's Association of the city asked that the mayor consider a budget provision which would provide helmets, raincoats and boots for volunteer fire companies.

Coughlin said he represented 800 volunteer firemen in the city. The work of the volunteers, he stressed, has been praised by those unfortunate enough to have serious fires, and "it is a known fact that the volunteer firemen are largely responsible for a low fire insurance rate in the city."

It is also known, Coughlin said, that the fire chief will not allow paid men to go in a burning building without proper equipment," and the same is true for volunteers.

The board of fire commissioners, at a recent meeting, favored getting the requested equipment he said, and he understood that it was in the budget, "and that you slashed it out . . . is that right mayor?" Then he asked. "Don't you as a volunteer fireman think we should receive some consideration. . . . Why should we have to equip ourselves?"

Says Idea New One

The mayor said he had been a volunteer fireman for several years and he knew the volunteers "do an exceptionally good job." The mayor said the idea that volunteers brought their own equipmen was new to him. The fire department furnishes equipment to the "one I belong to," he said.

"There are many things to consider in making up a budget," the mayor said. "I thought the amount suggested would be insufficient to supply all the volunteers, and I ask how it was to be distributed. I asked for suggestions and plans. I felt this was something new and worthy of consideration, and I think there should be a breakdown on how the money is to be used."

Coughlin contended that when he met with the fire commissioners it was explained how it was to be used and one suggestion called for allowing each volunteer fire company six sets of helmets, raincoats and boots to be placed on trucks."

Coughlin asked the mayor to reconsider this item for the budget and L. E. Dunn, 152 Washington avenue, who said he was on the committee which discussed the proposal with the fire board, supported Coughlin's argument.

Third Ward Alderman Edwin Radel wanted to know why the city laboratory showed a deficit of $6,500 and Mayor Newkirk explained that $9,000 had been put into the previous budget for materials and because of increased costs, $15,600 was spent. This item alone, accounted for most of it, he said.

Asks Why Raise Given

Radel also wanted to know why the salary of the assistant laboratory physician had been raised from $3,600 to $6,500. Dr. Derman later explained that when Dr. Anthony J. Tocco first came to the laboratory he was there for specialized training and was on a training basis. He was placed in psychology when another physician became ill. He commended his work and said that in the blood bank it was outstanding and he helped boost the income there from $7,000 to $14,000. The city had been getting away with something where the lower salary was concerned, he said.

A question by Mayor Newkirk later stressed the fact that Mrs. Alan Hanstein's work was also an important factor in building up the blood bank.

Radel's question on the general deficit of $17,079.80 brought from the mayor the explanation that $2,681.69 was the 1950 deficit, $12,847 was the deficit of 1949 brought on by estimates that were too low by various departments in December of that year, and $1,550.93 was a charge-off of anticipated revenue which did not come in.

Asks on Assessments

Fourth Ward Alderman John Buboltz wanted to know why the total assessed valuation of the city was $32,103,885 on Jan. 1, 1949 while it is estimated at $30,834,940 for Jan. 1, 1951, a loss amounting to $1,268,945.

Mayor Newkirk said the demolition of buildings on the Broadway crossing project area, veterans exemptions and many individual losses on buildings and properties, accounted for the reduced total.

Buboltz cited building permit totals in the city which he said were $1,816,638 in 1949, and $4,485,200 in estimated cost in 1950.

The mayor stressed that estimates based on building permits failed to bring up the total assessed valuation because many estimates are on properties that are exempt from taxation, and others cannot be added to the tax roll until structures are completed.

Buboltz also asked why despite a one-third increase in assessed values in 1948, and the increased tax rates since that time, "it appears that the bonded indebtedness of the city of Kingston has gone from $1,625,000 to $2,927,000 at the present time. This is an increase of $1,320,000. . . . What has this money been used for."

The biggest item, the mayor said was $1,250,000 for the George Washington School.

Query on Signals

Tenth Ward Alderman James J. Carroll wanted to know if $2,700 in the budget for traffic purposes was for traffic signals, and the mayor said "in the majority of cases" it would be for that.

The alderman also asked what the city was realizing on parking meter advertising and was told that the project has been in effect for four months and to date amounts to about $150 a month.

Commander A. S. Hickey, U.S.N., retired, wanted to know how many of the group were there as taxpayers without special interests; those who represented no city group or individual, and about half of the group stood up.

Survey Proposed

Walter Donnaruma said he was concerned with the general increase in city government because higher tax rates might tend to discourage home building in the city. He proposed a scientific survey to "bring the assessment in line." He suggested also that the city might do well to have a local group similar to the Hoover Commission on a national basis for "consolidation of some departments."

W. L. Rider, 75 Lounsbery Place, said it was "becoming increasingly hard for people to own property and maintain real estate in the city," and he wanted to know if the mayor had considered means of taking the burden off real estate.

The mayor indicated that lots of consideration had been given to that proposal but nothing feasible had developed. The mayor then indicated that the cost of government, while increasing, was not doing so in proportion to earning power in the city. He said he was open to all suggestions that would relieve the tax burden.

Alderman Radel, just prior to the close of the hearing, recommended that the mayor revise his five per cent across-the-board bonus plan to amount to from $200 to $240 in salary increases.

"Are you in favor of raising the tax rate," the mayor asked.

"I am in favor of raising salaries," Radel said.

The mayor then asked for suggestions, and Radel said he had just received a copy of the proposed budget, and had not had sufficient time to study it. The mayor said copies had been available for about a week.

Old Ice for Banquet

Juneau, Alaska, Dec. 29 (AP)—Two hundred pounds of million-year-old cocktail ice is winging its way to New York city. The ice, from ages-old Mendenhall Glacier near here, was ordered for the Explorers Club annual banquet at the Hotel Roosevelt in New York Jan. 13. Maynard Miller, club member and director of the Juneau Icecap Research Project with offices at (500 Riverside Drive) New York, ordered the antique drink-chiller. It was put aboard a Pan American plane for Seattle last night, whence United Air Lines will haul the chilly chunk eastward.

Washington, Dec. 29 (AP)—President Truman will receive the Woodrow Wilson Award for distinguished service for his work in behalf of the United Nations. The bronze plaque will be presented to him Jan. 10, the 31st anniversary of the birth of the League of Nations, of which the late President Wilson was the principal founder. The award was made to Mr. Truman "in recognition of his wisdom, courage, and leadership in strengthening the U.N. as an effective instrument of world law."

Will Delay French

Paris, Dec. 29 (AP)—Socialist opposition will delay for "many months" any French move to follow the United States and Britain in restoring full diplomatic relations with Spain, informed sources say. France's Socialist Party is authoritatively reported ready to quit Premier Rene Pleven's coalition cabinet if a French ambassador to Spain is appointed. A Socialist walkout would leave the cabinet with too little support to retain office.

Will Ask Right to Save Trees Felled by Wind

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 29 (AP)—The 1951 Legislature will be asked to authorize private logging firms to salvage the innumerable trees felled in the Adirondack forest preserve by the big blow last month.

Attorney General Nathaniel Goldstein said yesterday the state could remove the timber but the Legislature's permission was needed before the Conservation Department could contract with private concerns to do the work and sell the timber.

The department had requested Goldstein's opinion in view of the state constitution's provision that the preserve "shall be forever kept as wild forest lands" and "shall not be leased, sold or exchanged * * * nor shall the timber thereon be sold, removed or destroyed."

The wind, rain and snow storm that whipped the state Nov. 25 felled from 25 to 100 per cent of the timber on 420,000 acres in the Adirondacks, Conservation Commissioner Perry B. Duryea said last night. The original estimate was 250,000 acres.

Duryea said he would ask the 1951 Legislature to act.

Dewey Asks . . .

in bonds to finance construction of the self-liquidating highway. If the new Legislature grants expected approval, the proposed amendment will be voted on by the people next fall.

Administration sources claim that putting the state's credit behind thruway bonds will mean an overall saving of between $75,000,000 and $100,000 in financing the project. It will mean saving through lower interest rates.

Dewey will contend that there is desperate need for the thruway to rush emergency equipment to various sections of the state and to speed the outpourings of expanded defense production between the Great Lakes and the Atlantic Seaboard.

Thirteen miles of the four and six-lane expressway have been completed. Sixty-four miles are under construction.

Positive action by the Legislature is not required to continue the State Residential Rent Control program. The present law expires June 30, 1952.

However, the freeze on rents expires next March. Rent Administrator Joseph D. McGoldrick will submit a plan to the Legislature next month to become effective March 1.

His plan, expected to follow the present pattern generally, becomes effective automatically unless the Legislature disapproves it by joint resolution before Feb. 15.

Hiss Still on Bail

New York, Dec. 29 (AP)—In a two-to-one decision, the U. S. Court of Appeals yesterday allowed Alger Hiss to continue free in $10,000 bail until his perjury conviction is ruled on by the U. S. Supreme Court. Hiss, former high State Department aide, was convicted early this year of lying when he swore he never gave government secrets to ex-Communist spy courier Whittaker Chambers. He was sentenced to five years.

Japan Seen . . .

friends; but they do have permanent interests. Ours and the Japanese, at this hour at least, are practically identical.

No Troops in Field

In spite of Russian propaganda claims, and Japanese desires, no Japanese troops are in the field in Korea today. We are using the great Japanese air and naval bases in fighting this war. Japanese personnel are employed as guards, mechanics, truck drivers and in many other ways.

It is an incongruous fact that in the main U.N. base for the Korean war is the territory of a nation still, technically, an "enemy."

And although it was necessary practically to strip the country of our whole garrison force—four under-strength infantry divisions—there have been no disturbances, no incidents, no efforts by the Japanese to take advantage of that fact. (There have been some ominous outbreaks fomented by Korean Communists living in Japan.)

What are the results of the occupation?

I do not believe—and I put this in the first-person because it is a personal appraisal — that the theory or practice of "democracy" has penetrated very deeply into Japanese consciousness. So far as I could tell, the emperor is still their great symbol of authority and leadership. Their tendency still is to believe in the value of a ruling class, rather than in the wisdom of the masses.

Some Disagree

Some Americans disagree with this view. Only time will tell which is correct.

But in its physical aspects, the occupation has been almost a miracle, a story without precedent anywhere in history.

American engineers, doctors, scientists and business men—in short, the technicians — have brought to Japan a degree of comfort and safety never before known. They have opened wide new vistas.

They have sharply cut back the former high mortality rate of infants and older people. A whole new concept of diet, nutrition, the prevention of disease, and public health in general, has come into being. On a personal basis, a great many Americans provide Japanese mothers with food-fortifiers for their children. The results already are apparent.

In terms of consumer goods, there are actually more articles in the shops than there were ten years ago when I last previously saw the country. You see more metals and more rubber goods, tires, for example.

Is In Fair Shape

Financially, the country is in fair shape and improving steadily. It has a balanced budget, and the currency is getting stronger.

Joseph M. Dodge, of Detroit, a budget expert, is largely responsible for this. He quotes Japan's finance minister to illustrate the increasing improvement in the country's financial position. "When a burglar breaks into a house now," the minister said, "he actually steals money."

What about the future, when the occupation ends and the Americans leave?

Japan needs the United States, both as a market and as a source of raw materials. Until they can be re-armed, the Japanese will need American military protection against the ancient enemies, Russia and China.

Vice versa, the United States, and all the other democracies, need Japan as the great balancing factor against communism in the Orient. With their enormous industrial and military strength, plus dynamic energy and great ingenuity, Japan can effectively counter Communist operations in Asia.

The interests are inter-dependent. As long as they remain so, Japan will be our most effective ally.

His View on Bomb

York, England, Dec. 29 (AP)—The Archbishop of York, Dr. Cyril F. Garbett, said today use of the atom bomb could be justified only as a "final attempt to save western civilization from catastrophic ruin by unprovoked aggression." The archbishop — second-ranking prelate in the Church of England—declared in his monthly diocesan letter that atom bombing of the Chinese Communists in Korea would lead to an "irreparable breach" between East and West. He added the "very thought of the possibility of war" with the "patient, long-suffering people" of China "is hateful." The prelate called for another attempt "at the earliest possible moment and at the highest level" for an agreement with Soviet Russia. "Possibly even more urgent," he declared, "is the necessity of a good understanding with China."

Shortage Only in U. S.

Washington, Dec. 29 (AP)— The army said yesterday there is a "limited shortage" of combat boots and gloves for troops training in this country, but no shortages on the Korean war front. An army spokesman said the shortages were in "some sizes" and resulted from meeting "urgent requisitions from the Far East." The spokesman acknowledged that the army was selling both gloves and combat shoes as surplus three years ago, but declared: "We were told to get rid of them because we had no place to store them. Some went to surplus sales, others went out in foreign aid programs."

Evacuation Hurts

Singapore, Dec. 29 (AP)—Evacuation of French civilians from Communist-threatened North Indochina is disrupting French shipping and air transportation in the Far East, a shipping official said here today. The strain is due to a Dec. 4 decree that all French women and children must leave the Hanoi and Haiphong areas, threatened by Communist-led Vietmin rebels. Between 3,000 and 4,000 persons are affected in the Hanoi section and several hundred at Haiphong. The French government is chartering French ships and planes to carry out the removal.

2nd Brother Dies

Cpl. FRANK X. DUGAN

His death in Korea is the second war casualty for the Dugan family of 58 Brewster street.

Corporal Frank X. Dugan was killed December 7, fighting with a U. S. Marine Corps division in the Chosin reservoir section of North Korea.

Announcement of his death was delivered Wednesday to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James J. Dugan, who lost a son, Pfc. James J. Dugan on Okinawa, April 6, 1945.

Another son, Harold S. Dugan, is a sergeant in the marines at LeJeune, N. C.

The three Dugan brothers chose the marines as their favorite branch of the armed forces and the great sacrifice that has saddened the family home emphasizes that they served with distinction.

Today is Corporal Dugan's birthday. He would have been 24 years old if he had lived.

James J. Dugan, father of the two heroes, served in both World Wars, and is a local mail-carrier.

Mrs. Dugan, mother of the boys, is the former Louise Seitz.

Surviving besides the parents and Sergeant Harold S. Dugan are another brother, Thomas F. Dugan at home and a sister, Mrs. James Laws of Snow Hill, Md.

Corporal Dugan was a member of St. Mary's Church and the Holy Name Society of the parish.

A requiem Mass for the repose of his soul will be offered Tuesday at 9 a. m. in St. Mary's Church.

Auto Industry . . .

idled. This will bring total layoffs in Ford plants throughout the United States to about 13,000.

Studebaker Corp., at South Bend, Ind., has announced a 20 per cent cutback of automobiles and trucks during January.

Any further cutbacks in production are expected to hit the Detroit area the hardest. Although the auto industry has received an estimated $1,000,000,000 in defense contracts recently, most of the work is to be done in plants outside Detroit. So far most of the defense production has been assigned to new plant facilities with a minimum of interruption to auto output.

Automotive News reported it all depends on the foreign situation whether cutbacks will become more severe later in 1951. The trade paper estimated 1950 production at slightly over 8,000,000 cars and trucks. This is an all-time record by more than 1,000,000 units.

A girl and a car are similar. You can use a paint job to conceal the years, but the lines tell the story.

He—How would you punctuate this sentence? Mary went swimming and lost her bathing suit.
Him—I'd make a dash after Mary.

Light travels at an amazing speed until it hits the human mind.

A lion got loose at the circus and ran towards a man in the audience. The man broke and ran.
Trainer—Don't be afraid, that lion hasn't got any teeth.
Man—Maybe not, but I'm not going to stand here and be gummed to death!

Easy street doesn't have so many pedestrians on it nowadays.

Every man who means well isn't a man of means.

Young Husband—It seems to me, my dear, that these pancakes are rather heavy.
His Bride—Then I' afraid you're a poor judge, for the cookbook says they are light and feathery.

In Chicago in the winter time the girls sit around and hug the stove and let the men smoke. But in Atlanta in the winter time the men sit around and hug the girls and let the stove smoke.

He—Now that we are married, perhaps I can point out a few of your defects.
She—Don't bother dear, I know all about them. It's those defects that kept me from getting a better man than you.

Mechanics Professor—Name a great time-saver.

The liquor dealer is the only business man who is ashamed of his best customer.

Chicago to Try Again

Chicago, Dec. 29 (AP)—Chicago is going to try again to halt jaywalking. Beginning today jaywalkers—Pedestrians who cross streets in mid-block or against traffic lights—will get warnings from police. Later warning notices will be handed out and eventually violators will get traffic tickets. The new traffic code provides fines up to $200 for jaywalking. Chicago had an anti-jaywalking ordinance once before but the Illinois Supreme Court declared it unconstitutional.

Married Yesterday

New York, Dec. 29 (AP)—Author John Steinbeck and Elaine Anderson Scott were married yesterday. She was divorced last week from actor Zachary Scott. It was Steinbeck's third marriage. The private ceremony was at the home of Steinbeck's publisher, Harold K. Guinzburg.

Electronic Building Burns

Washington, Dec. 29 (AP)—Fire caused $250,000 estimated damage last night in a building occupied by Schuttig and Company, which has been making electronic equipment for the government. Police started an investigation of the possibility of sabotage. The two-story brick building is in the 1300 block of Ninth street, northeast.

Gertrude Rutledge To Wed in Spring

GERTRUDE RUTLEDGE

John Rutledge, of 148 West Pierpont street announces the engagement of his daughter, Gertrude, to Robert Beesmer, son of Mrs. Pearl Beesmer of Stony Hollow, and the late Burton Beesmer.

The wedding will take place in the spring.

Christmas Party

St. Remy, Dec. 29—The Ladies' Auxiliary of the St. Remy Fire Department held its business meeting and Christmas party December 18. A pot luck supper was served, and all members present exchanged gifts.

Y.M.C.A. Approaches Centennial Mark

The board of directors of the Y.M.C.A. has announced plans to observe the 100th anniversary in 1951 of the "Y" in America, as part of the national recognition of the group which began 100 years ago in Montreal and Boston. President C. S. Rowland, who presided at the board meeting, will announce the committee for Kingston later.

The group's general report for the Kingston Y.M.C.A. revealed the growth of new members in all departments, with particularly marked growth in the boys clubs. Youth Center activities for the M.J.M. boys, it was announced, have been particularly outstanding. Meanwhile the Industrial Club reported an excellent program on December 14, when Dr. Charles Noble addressed the Christmas meeting.

Reports from the Physical Department showed definite growth in paddle ball, although there are, at present, only two courts available, and increased use of the new masseur's services. They also reported that the number of lockers in the Health Department room should be increased.

The Y.M.C.A.'s financial report fixed income and expenses at the same level as the preceding year, with the income for the past seven months totaling $32,828.63, and expenses totaling $33,052.77.

The board also voted to have all employes participate in the Social Security now open to non-profit organizations.

New Year's Dance

A New Year's dance will be held Saturday from 9 p. m. at the Lomontville fire house, with music by Floyd Deitz and his "Singing Sons of the Saddle." The public is invited to attend.

Medical Student Addresses W.S.C.S. On Mental Health

The W.S.C.S. of St. James Church was addressed Wednesday afternoon following the group's business session by Richard Reynolds, a medical student at Johns Hopkins University, who based his remarks on the often quoted Greek axiom, "a sound mind, a sound body." Mr. Reynolds, in his "Survey of World Health" opened his remarks with praise of gymnasium classes and competitive sports, which, he felt achieve much in pointing the way toward health.

Mr. Reynolds also stressed the importance of mental health, which, he said, many persons underestimate. Mental indecision, he pointed out, causes truly sick lives, with 10 per cent of our population mentally ill, and spending their lives in institutions. Many, he continued, appear superficially normal, although they suffer like Edward Robinson's memorable character in his poem "Richard Cory," who glittered as he walked," and ended his life with a sudden suicidal impulse.

Troubled Times

Our troubled times, and the stress and strain of world affairs, the speaker believed, play their part in many mental cases, although most difficulties can be traced to childhood, where insecurity is often caused by lack of affection. Stressing the importance of child training, he said that those who are insecure crack first, when they are met with aggression.

A happy individual, Reynolds told the group, depends on a healthy body. Symptomatic of the tension of the times are peptic ulcers, which, the speaker felt, are treated too lightly, with over 75 per cent of the cases as revealed by a student survey, caused by worry and anxiety.

Mental Health

Equally important to the individual is moral health, Reynolds continued. The Boy Scout oath, the Ten Commandments and the Golden Rule, the last two being the essence of moral society, form an important foundation for morality.

Juvenile deliquency, a common problem of our times, the speaker believed, could be helped by boys' clubs, which teach the young to assume responsibility, and through careful investigation.

The speaker also touched on the protection given by organized medicine; the lack of glamour in modern science, with its long hours and small pay; and bacteriological warfare.

Spiritual Health

Reynolds devoted the last portion of his lecture to spiritual health which, though difficult to attain, gives the individual the most lasting satisfaction. Spiritual digressions, he stressed, using Shintoism as an example, often detract from the meaning of life. People must learn, he concluded, to adhere to the principles of moral health, and must learn to integrate physical, spiritual, mental and moral health.

Union Churches

During the morning session of the W.S.C.S. Mrs. Clyde Wonderly conducted a question and answer period based on the study "We Seek Him Together," which dealt with the problem of formal, or informal worship in the churches. She also described the union churches in the Canal Zone, where the spirit of unity is strongly embedded among church members hailing from many separate denominations. Mrs. Wonderly concluded by urging her audience to listen to the next radio forum hour when the revivalist Billy Graham, and Dr. Ralph W. Sockman of Christ Church, New York, will conduct a discussion.

Devotions for the meeting were conducted by Mary Jane Smith, a freshman at Gettysburg College who read the group a story of medical healing.

Mrs. Viola Babcock, and Mrs. John MacKinnon were hostesses at the luncheon. College students home for the holidays were the group's guests.

MAY SHE SUGGEST ANOTHER TIME

A girl writes: "I have a job which requires that I work one night a week and this has caused me to refuse several invitations from a certain man. Would it be permissible to suggest a definite other night when I can go? I don't want to seem overeager but I do like this man very much, and I'm afraid he'll stop asking."

If you have to refuse again, reply frankly, "Why do you ask me on the only night I can't go? I could go almost any other one, the whole rest of the week."

A Teetotaler Toast

Dear Mrs. Post: At a party to announce an engagement, what can be provided for drinking a toast without having strong drink? We are inviting some of the man's family and I know they object to alcohol. It really doesn't matter one way or another to me, but at the same time we'd like to have something that wouldn't seem a thin toast.

Answer: White grapefruit juice (the sparkling kind) or ginger ale! Either one looks festive and would be suitable.

Bride Should Second Thanks

Dear Mrs. Post: I've received a prompt thank-you note for a very expensive piece of sterling silver, but the note was written by the bride's mother for her. She explained that Mary hadn't been able to write and would be gone several weeks on her wedding trip. This happened several months ago. I know the bride is home. Am I too exacting to expect that she write me a note herself for a present of this importance?

Answer: For present of great importance I do think the bride should herself write a thank-you note. Let us hope she will!

Wearing of Fraternity Pin

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it proper to wear a fraternity pin on a tuxedo?

Answer: Never on the coat. Properly it is worn on the waistcoat, out of sight.

Y.M.C.A. Approaches Centennial Mark

The board of directors of the Y.M.C.A. has announced plans to observe the 100th anniversary in 1951 of the "Y" in America, as part of the national recognition of the group which began 100 years ago in Montreal and Boston. President C. S. Rowland, who presided at the board meeting, will announce the committee for Kingston later.

The group's general report for the Kingston Y.M.C.A. revealed the growth of new members in all departments, with particularly marked growth in the boys clubs. Youth Center activities for the M.J.M. boys, it was announced, have been particularly outstanding. Meanwhile the Industrial Club reported an excellent program on December 14, when Dr. Charles Noble addressed the Christmas meeting.

Reports from the Physical Department showed definite growth in paddle ball, although there are, at present, only two courts available, and increased use of the new masseur's services. They also reported that the number of lockers in the Health Department room should be increased.

The Y.M.C.A.'s financial report fixed income and expenses at the same level as the preceding year, with the income for the past seven months totaling $32,828.63, and expenses totaling $33,052.77.

The board also voted to have all employes participate in the Social Security now open to non-profit organizations.

Medical Student Addresses W.S.C.S. On Mental Health

The W.S.C.S. of St. James Church was addressed Wednesday afternoon following the group's business session by Richard Reynolds, a medical student at Johns Hopkins University, who based his remarks on the often quoted Greek axiom, "a sound mind, a sound body." Mr. Reynolds, in his "Survey of World Health" opened his remarks with praise of gymnasium classes and competitive sports, which, he felt achieve much in pointing the way toward health.

Mr. Reynolds also stressed the importance of mental health, which, he said, many persons underestimate. Mental indecision, he pointed out, causes truly sick lives, with 10 per cent of our population mentally ill, and spending their lives in institutions. Many, he continued, appear superficially normal, although they suffer like Edward Robinson's memorable character in his poem "Richard Cory," who glittered as he walked," and ended his life with a sudden suicidal impulse.

Troubled Times

Our troubled times, and the stress and strain of world affairs, the speaker believed, play their part in many mental cases, although most difficulties can be traced to childhood, where insecurity is often caused by lack of affection. Stressing the importance of child training, he said that those who are insecure crack first, when they are met with aggression.

A happy individual, Reynolds told the group, depends on a healthy body. Symptomatic of the tension of the times are peptic ulcers, which, the speaker felt, are treated too lightly, with over 75 per cent of the cases as revealed by a student survey, caused by worry and anxiety.

Mental Health

Equally important to the individual is moral health, Reynolds continued. The Boy Scout oath, the Ten Commandments and the Golden Rule, the last two being the essence of moral society, form an important foundation for morality.

Juvenile deliquency, a common problem of our times, the speaker believed, could be helped by boys' clubs, which teach the young to assume responsibility, and through careful investigation.

The speaker also touched on the protection given by organized medicine; the lack of glamour in modern science, with its long hours and small pay; and bacteriological warfare.

Spiritual Health

Reynolds devoted the last portion of his lecture to spiritual health which, though difficult to attain, gives the individual the most lasting satisfaction. Spiritual digressions, he stressed, using Shintoism as an example, often detract from the meaning of life. People must learn, he concluded, to adhere to the principles of moral health, and must learn to integrate physical, spiritual, mental and moral health.

During the morning session of the W.S.C.S. Mrs. Clyde Wonderly conducted a question and answer period based on the study "We Seek Him Together," which dealt with the problem of formal, or informal worship in the churches. Nerve Gas, Germs Could Kill Many Defense Book Says

Washington, Dec. 28 (AP)—An enemy using nerve gas or germs might be able to halt production of American atomic weapons without ever dropping a bomb or firing a shot. Or he might paralyze, literally, the military nerve center at the Pentagon.

These possibilities are implicit in the text of a grim new book issued yesterday by the Civilian Defense Administration. Its purpose is to tell state and local defense organizations, and the people, what to expect in atomic era warfare and what to do about surviving.

The book, "Health Services and Special Weapons Defense," includes much of the previously published guidance for defense methods in atomic attack. But it also reaches far deeper into the subjects of chemical, germ and radiological warfare than any other document the government has published.

Much of the book concerns means of saving those who have been injured, but there also is a chapter on what to do with the bodies of those killed by blast, poison gas, germs or fission products emitting lethal rays.

How New Weapons Work

Here are some of the things the Civil Defense Administration has to say about the new weapons that may be used against the civilian population or against groups engaged in defense work:

Biological warfare—Germ warfare is neither the "absolute weapons" capable of destroying the entire population of large cities nor an impractical weapon that presents no dangers. "The truth lies between these extremes." It may be directed either against man or against the livestock and plants he eats. The materials or biological warfare—bacteria or poisons produced from bacteria—might be distributed by saboteurs before open war started or during actual hostilities. (CDA officials say no instances of such sabotage have been discovered so far).

The germs could be smuggled into the United States or spawned "within the United States by workers in clandestine laboratories."

They could be used, in addition to general attack on urban populations, "to delay military or industrial mobilization and production." They could be put into the air circulating systems of "strategic buildings" or into the atmosphere surrounding those buildings or big war industry plants. (Thus key personnel, difficult or impossible to replace quickly in such spots Hanford, Oak Ridge, Los Alamos or the Pentagon could be weakened or killed).

Germans Had Gas

Nerve gas—forms of nerve gases were developed by the Germans during World War 2, but not used. Nerve gas is nearly colorless and odorless. Because its action is rapid, any mechanical detection methods would have to be automatic and give the warning in a matter of seconds. There are common drugs for arresting the progress of the convulsion and suffocation produced by the effects of the gas on the nerves, but they must be administered quickly. Nerve gas could be delivered by bombs, shells or "guided missiles from distant sources." A bomb would have an effective area radiating out up to a half mile from its gas-releasing explosion, but this does not mean death would come to all within the zone. It also could be used, presumably, in the same surreptitious manner as germ weapons against strategic buildings or installations.

Thus the three new weapons—radiological poison, biological material and nerve gas—can be used much more "selectively" than the atomic bomb.

Voice of America Harming U. S., Is London's Warning

London, Dec. 28 (AP)—The Manchester Guardian declared today the radio Voice of America is making enemies instead of friends for the United States in China.

The Independent Liberal newspaper said in an editorial:

"If the United States is to spend an extra $18,000,000,000 on defense it is to be hoped that not much of this will go on increased American propaganda.

"Some governments, like some people, are the worst advocates of their own cause.

"If the American record is studied in international affairs, it is a respectable and even inspiring one. The trouble comes when America itself begins to interpret it.

"The Voice of America comes booming out, and those who hear it have second thoughts. It has particularly unfortunate results in China, where the American Republicans would like it to roar louder.

"The Voice of America has convinced many Chinese that America can see no harm in Chiang Kai-shek and that it would like his return to the mainland.

"It has convinced many Asians that America believes that the capitalist system should flourish everywhere in its simplest and harshest form, even though most of Asia, because of its special social and economic circumstances, does not want it, at least unadulterated.

"Silence is golden. If the voice were only stilled it might be possible to hear impartial voices raised in a more level-headed appreciation of America's contribution to modern civilization. America might be surprised — quite agreeably surprised—at some of the things said.

"For some countries, like some people, do not understand their own good points."

Former Kingston High School basketball greats will be on display tonight at the municipal auditorium, when the College All Stars meet the Recreations of the Orange-Sullivan League.

The addition of Bob Ghear and John P. "Buddy" Smith to the Collegian roster yesterday insured a power-laden array to face Andy Murphy's high scoring semi-pros.

Heading the former Maroon cagers will be Ronnie Scheffel, who holds the all-time DUSO scoring record for a season with 394 points. Scheffel is currently a star performer with the freshman squad at St. Bonaventure U.

"Buddy" Smith, who actually did not play much, if any high school basketball in Kingston, later blossomed into a full fledged star at Ithaca. In his senior year, he had one of the highest scoring percentages in the nation among small college teams.

Big Bob Ghear, a staunch backcourt performer with Big Ed Weaver, "Champ" Holstein, Mike Rienzo and Joe Albany during the great 1946-47 seasons, will be at one of the guard posts, along with Bud Scheffel, a member of the Hartwick College squad.

Joe Albany, the famous "Claw" of high school legend is the sixth member of the Collegian ensemble.

With many students at home for the Christmas recess, Manager Andy Murphy expects the best crowd of the season for the Recreation outing.

80-Point Average

Although the club has averaged 80 points per game in the Orange-Sullivan League, the attendance has been shabby. Murphy figures that the return of the old Maroon stars will be a shot in the arm for the boxoffice.

"The Collegians will have one of the best all-star squads ever seen in these parts," Murphy said, "but I think our superior team work will prevail. The Recs have shown the ability to score with anybody with the possible exception of the Woodridge Pros on a given night."

Murphy did not announce a starting lineup but it was believed he would lean heavily on "Rip" Mathers, Bob Murray, the set-shot threat, Charlie Neff, Frank Sass, Big Bill Kleine and the Holstein brothers.

A preliminary game will pair the Recreation Bs against another group of former K.H.S. and ex-college players.

The main game starts at 8:30 p. m.

East Six-Point Shriner Choice

San Francisco, Dec. 29 (AP)—College football's great contribution to the welfare of crippled children—the Shrine East-West classic—is primed for what may be its most spectacular show.

The 26th of these famed intersectional games, which annually provide more than $100,000 for the Shrine charity, brings together tomorrow two all-star teams that really are loaded.

The East, with name players such as Michigan State's Everett Grandelius, Purdue's John Kerestes, Navy's Bill Powers and many another of the caliber, is favored by six points.

But many fans look at the West's Kyle Rote and a flock of other dangerous backs and say this game is a tossup if one ever was.

"We'll give them a ball game," said Rote, hard-hitting Southern Methodist back, who can do everything well.

The 62,000 fans who will jampack Kezar Stadium were promised dry, crisp, 50-degree weather.

Bradley and Kentucky Sugar Bowl Choices

New Orleans, Dec. 29 (AP)—The Sugar Bowl hit the jackpot nine months ago by inviting Kentucky and Bradley—now the nation's number one and two basketball teams.

Kentucky (6-0) meets St. Louis (8-1) at 7:45 p. m. (CST) and Bradley (10-0) faces Syracuse (6-2) at 9:30 p. m. (CST) tonight in the opening round of the annual Sugar Bowl tournament.

Winners tonight will play for the Sugar Bowl championship tomorrow night while the losers play for consolation honors.

Bradley and Kentuck are favored to win their openers and meet in the finals tomorrow night—a repeat performance of last year's finals when Kentucky edged Bradley 71-66.

The Sugar Bowl finals—assuming that both Kentucky and Bradley meet—may well take the edge from later national tournaments.

Kentucky matched against Bradley could well be the game-of-the-season.

Plan Help For Harvard Football

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 29 (AP)—A streamlined and more youthful Harvard alumni advisory group, headed by George Whitney, New York banker, soon will interest itself in the Crimson's woeful football plight.

It will replace a 23-man organization, known as the visiting committee on athletics, headed by Henry W. (Esky) Clark of San Francisco, which resigned en masse here on Nov. 26.

That was the night after Harvard bowed to objective rival Yale and, for the second consecutive season, wound up with but one victory.

Since Clark's committeemen, one of whom was Whitney, were pledged to secrecy, their action did not become known until a semi-official announcement was made last night in New York.

It was confirmed by Endicott (Chub) Peabody of Boston, who, as a guard in 1941, was the last Harvard football player to gain All-America rating.

"The situation was just that members of our committee felt they couldn't do the job they would like to do and wanted to turn the assignment over to some new faces," Peabody explained. "I do not think our resignations are epoch making but I do think they will improve matters."

Calumet Stables Owner Dies at 75

Miami Beach, Fla., Dec. 29 (AP)—Warren Wright, 75, owner of the fabulous Calumet Farm thoroughbred racing stable, died at his winter home here last night after an illness of three weeks.

Wright was master of the most successful racing and breeding thoroughbred farm in the history of the American turf.

Wright and his wife, the former Miss Lucille Parker of Maysville, Ky., arrived here early in December for the winter. He was stricken three weeks ago and died at 8:45 p. m. (EST). Death was attributed to natural causes.

Mrs. Wright and their son, Warren, Jr., were with him at the end. The son arrived here two weeks ago from Lexington, Ky.

Wright, slender and quiet-spoken, had an inherent love for race horses and he bred them to win. He traveled thousands of miles to see his thoroughbreds run, but made only an occasional sentimental wager.

He began building his turf empire in 1931 when he inherited the bulk of his father's $30,000,000 estate. The father, William Monroe Wright, had founded the Calumet Baking Powder Company in Chicago in 1888.

The elder Wright himself had been a successful breeder and turfman and won the Hambletonian, Kentucky Futurity and other major harness events.

Ten years after he inherited Calumet Farm, Wright's colt Whirlaway won the Kentucky Derby, the Belmont and the Preakness. Three more Calumet horses went on to win the Kentucky classic—Pensive in 1944, Citation in 1948 and Ponder in 1949. Citation also won the triple crown of racing in 1948.

In 1950 Citation became the world's leading money winner with total earnings of $948,630.

Other great Calumet Farm horses include Armed, Bewitched, Coaltown and Faultless.

Weak Two-Bid Seldom Loses Out

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

The most effective new bid that has been developed in many years is the weak two-bid, invented by my team-mate Howard Schenken, of New York. An opening bid of two spades, two hearts, or two diamonds shows a hand that will win about six tricks but that is not up to the usual requirements for an opening bid of one. When this method is used, an opening bid of two clubs is used to show a really gigantic hand in any suit.

The weak two-bid robs the opponents of one round of bidding. Sometimes they are shut out, and sometimes they find the wrong contract because of the lack of maneuvering space. A good example is furnished by the hand shown today, played in the recent world's championship held in Bermuda.

Two spades was not, of course, a healthful contract. South struggled with the cards for a while and finally managed to win six tricks, for a penalty of 200 points.

In the other room, the hand was bid "normally," and North wound up playing the hand at four clubs. That contract was made, for a plus score of 130 points (50 points for making a part score contract, and 80 points for the tricks). The difference between losing 200 points and gaining 130 points was 330 points. Not a fortune, of course, but not to be sneezed at either.

West's bid of two hearts (appropriately enough, West happened to be Howard Schenken) was responsible for this little bit of larceny. North didn't want to choose between clubs and diamonds and felt, also, that a takeout double would show his strength best. Unfortunately for him, South responded to North's worst suit.

Nor was South to blame. When a player doubles one major suit for a takeout, he usually has good support for the other major suit. South therefore counted on finding good spades in his partner's hand. South had no way of knowing that his partner had very good clubs and very weak spades.

The weak two-bid doesn't bring a startling result every time it is used. Sometimes opponents get into the bidding quite comfortably and reach their normal contract.

Ronnie Scheffel and Buddy Smith Lead Collegians Against Rec Five

All-Star Fray Slated Tonight At Auditorium

Joe Albany, B. Scheffel Bob Ghear Also Listed

Former Kingston High School basketball greats will be on display tonight at the municipal auditorium, when the College All Stars meet the Recreations of the Orange-Sullivan League.

The addition of Bob Ghear and John P. "Buddy" Smith to the Collegian roster yesterday insured a power-laden array to face Andy Murphy's high scoring semi-pros.

Heading the former Maroon cagers will be Ronnie Scheffel, who holds the all-time DUSO scoring record for a season with 394 points. Scheffel is currently a star performer with the freshman squad at St. Bonaventure U.

"Buddy" Smith, who actually did not play much, if any high school basketball in Kingston, later blossomed into a full fledged star at Ithaca. In his senior year, he had one of the highest scoring percentages in the nation among small college teams.

Big Bob Ghear, a staunch backcourt performer with Big Ed Weaver, "Champ" Holstein, Mike Rienzo and Joe Albany during the great 1946-47 seasons, will be at one of the guard posts, along with Bud Scheffel, a member of the Hartwick College squad.

Joe Albany, the famous "Claw" of high school legend is the sixth member of the Collegian ensemble.

With many students at home for the Christmas recess, Manager Andy Murphy expects the best crowd of the season for the Recreation outing.

80-Point Average

Although the club has averaged 80 points per game in the Orange-Sullivan League, the attendance has been shabby. Murphy figures that the return of the old Maroon stars will be a shot in the arm for the boxoffice.

"The Collegians will have one of the best all-star squads ever seen in these parts," Murphy said, "but I think our superior team work will prevail. The Recs have shown the ability to score with anybody with the possible exception of the Woodridge Pros on a given night."

Murphy did not announce a starting lineup but it was believed he would lean heavily on "Rip" Mathers, Bob Murray, the set-shot threat, Charlie Neff, Frank Sass, Big Bill Kleine and the Holstein brothers.

A preliminary game will pair the Recreation Bs against another group of former K.H.S. and ex-college players.

The main game starts at 8:30 p. m.

East Six-Point Shriner Choice

San Francisco, Dec. 29 (AP)—College football's great contribution to the welfare of crippled children—the Shrine East-West classic is primed for what may be its most spectacular show.

The 26th of these famed intersectional games, which annually provide more than $100,000 for the Shrine charity, brings together tomorrow two all-star teams that really are loaded.

The East, with name players such as Michigan State's Everett Grandelius, Purdue's John Kerestes, Navy's Bill Powers and many another of the caliber, is favored by six points.

But many fans look at the West's Kyle Rote and a flock of other dangerous backs and say this game is a tossup if one ever was.

"We'll give them a ball game," said Rote, hard-hitting Southern Methodist back, who can do everything well.

The 62,000 fans who will jampack Kezar Stadium were promised dry, crisp, 50-degree weather.

Bradley and Kentucky Sugar Bowl Choices

New Orleans, Dec. 29 (AP)—The Sugar Bowl hit the jackpot nine months ago by inviting Kentucky and Bradley—now the nation's number one and two basketball teams.

Kentucky (6-0) meets St. Louis (8-1) at 7:45 p. m. (CST) and Bradley (10-0) faces Syracuse (6-2) at 9:30 p. m. (CST) tonight in the opening round of the annual Sugar Bowl tournament.

Winners tonight will play for the Sugar Bowl championship tomorrow night while the losers play for consolation honors.

Bradley and Kentuck are favored to win their openers and meet in the finals tomorrow night—a repeat performance of last year's finals when Kentucky edged Bradley 71-66.

The Sugar Bowl finals—assuming that both Kentucky and Bradley meet—may well take the edge from later national tournaments.

Kentucky matched against Bradley could well be the game-of-the-season.

Plan Help For Harvard Football

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 29 (AP)—A streamlined and more youthful Harvard alumni advisory group, headed by George Whitney, New York banker, soon will interest itself in the Crimson's woeful football plight.

It will replace a 23-man organization, known as the visiting committee on athletics, headed by Henry W. (Esky) Clark of San Francisco, which resigned en masse here on Nov. 26.

That was the night after Harvard bowed to objective rival Yale and, for the second consecutive season, wound up with but one victory.

Since Clark's committeemen, one of whom was Whitney, were pledged to secrecy, their action did not become known until a semi-official announcement was made last night in New York.

It was confirmed by Endicott (Chub) Peabody of Boston, who, as a guard in 1941, was the last Harvard football player to gain All-America rating.

"The situation was just that members of our committee felt they couldn't do the job they would like to do and wanted to turn the assignment over to some new faces," Peabody explained. "I do not think our resignations are epoch making but I do think they will improve matters."

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Weak Two-Bid Seldom Loses Out

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

The most effective new bid that has been developed in many years is the weak two-bid, invented by my team-mate Howard Schenken, of New York. An opening bid of two spades, two hearts, or two diamonds shows a hand that will win about six tricks but that is not up to the usual requirements for an opening bid of one. When this method is used, an opening bid of two clubs is used to show a really gigantic hand in any suit.

The weak two-bid robs the opponents of one round of bidding. Sometimes they are shut out, and sometimes they find the wrong contract because of the lack of maneuvering space. A good example is furnished by the hand shown today, played in the recent world's championship held in Bermuda.

Two spades was not, of course, a healthful contract. South struggled with the cards for a while and finally managed to win six tricks, for a penalty of 200 points.

In the other room, the hand was bid "normally," and North wound up playing the hand at four clubs. That contract was made, for a plus score of 130 points (50 points for making a part score contract, and 80 points for the tricks). The difference between losing 200 points and gaining 130 points was 330 points. Not a fortune, of course, but not to be sneezed at either.

West's bid of two hearts (appropriately enough, West happened to be Howard Schenken) was responsible for this little bit of larceny. North didn't want to choose between clubs and diamonds and felt, also, that a takeout double would show his strength best. Unfortunately for him, South responded to North's worst suit.

Nor was South to blame. When a player doubles one major suit for a takeout, he usually has good support for the other major suit. South therefore counted on finding good spades in his partner's hand. South had no way of knowing that his partner had very good clubs and very weak spades.

The weak two-bid doesn't bring a startling result every time it is used. Sometimes opponents get into the bidding quite comfortably and reach their normal contract.

Kingston Marine Writes to Mother On Beachhead War

SGT. WALTER H. NEULS

Sgt. Walter H. Neuls, U. S. Marine Corps, son of Mrs. Emil R. Himmelsbach of 54 Lucas avenue, was one of the 105,000 United Nations troops who were crowded on the Hungnam beachhead in Northeast Korea earlier this month awaiting the evacuation which was completed on Christmas Eve.

In a letter to his mother written December 11—just two weeks before the evacuation was completed—Sgt. Neuls vividly described his experiences in those dark days. His mother has given The Freeman permission to publish excerpts from the letter, which follow:

You probably haven't got any mail from me lately and the reason for that was that I was in a place where no mail came in or no mail could get out.

We left here on the 28th and started for Hagaru, where the rest of the wire section was set up. We got right at the foot of the mountains and we came upon a convoy that was stopped and they told us that we would be held up four to eight hours because there was a bridge out. We went for about five miles and we didn't see any bridge out so we kept going until we came upon another convoy. We asked them what was going on, and they told us that the Chinese had set up a bunch of road blocks all the way up to the reservoir.

Chinese All Over Hills

The marines were supposed to be clearing the road, so we waited there until they told us the road was clear. We got up the mountains okay and got up on the plateau up at Kotori, where the First Marines were set up. We stopped at their C.P. to find out how much farther we had to go and they said about 15 miles, so we started out again.

This time we got about a mile up the road and we could see machinegun fire going up into the hills. They stopped us and told us we couldn't go any farther because the Chinese were all over the hills.

The next morning the British Marines and part of the First Marines and some army and R.O.K. soldiers started up the road to clear out the Chinese.

There were five of us and we had a jeep and trailer and also a truck. We got in the convoy, but some lieutenant told us to pull off the road and stay there until we were told to get into the convoy. I am sure glad they wouldn't let us into the beginning of that convoy because they sure ran into hell. Some of the convoy got through but most of it got shot up. Some of the troops surrendered and some of them got back to Kotori.

British 'Fighting Bunch'

There were 260 British Marines that went up that morning and after all the troops pulled back to Kotori there were only 93 left. They sure are a fighting bunch of guys.

The second night we were at Kotori the Chinese attacked our C.P. but we held them off and the next morning they counted 60 dead Gooks right down in the C.P. and we lost five marines. We stayed up there until the day before yesterday and all the while we were there we were surrounded by Gooks.

One thing we were thankful for was that our planes kept bombing and strafing them all day long and some time at night.

When all the troops pulled out of the reservoir and Hagaru toward Kotori, they had to fight their way all the way back.

War at 30 Below Zero

This Marine division sure has taken a beating up here. A lot of the casualties have been from the cold. Some nights it was 30 below zero.

We left Kotori the day before yesterday at 3 o'clock in the afternoon in a large convoy. We didn't run into any trouble . . . but we would go a ways and then stop. We spent from 12 at night until 6 in the morning at one spot and our own troops were firing mortars right up there by us to keep the Gooks away from us. It is about 40 miles from here to Kotori and it took us about 24 hours to make the trip.

I sure did a lot of praying while I was up there and on that trip back. I guess everyone did too, and everyone was sure glad to get back.

The road coming into Kotori was cut off and also the road up to Hagaru, so when we started to run out of supplies those big army flying boxcars started dropping supplies to us.

Before we left Kotori we all got all the clothes we wanted so we all put on clean clothes and threw our dirty clothes away. I haven't shaved since the day I left here, and I sure got some beard.

The mess hall where we were was feeding so many men that they could only serve two meals a day, but it was better chow than they have down here.

After you get this letter you probably won't hear from me again for a while because we are going aboard ship either tomorrow or the next day.

Corpses Block Gun

One company up at Hagaru had a machinegun set up and they killed so many Gooks that they had to move their gun because they were piled up in front of it so high they couldn't see to fire.

I just found out that the night we sat on the mountain it was 35 below zero and the wind was blowing snow all over the place. Some of the guys went to sleep but I was afraid that if I went to sleep I would freeze to death. I am sure glad that that is over and I hope I never have to go through that again.

Japan's Energy

Japan's industry derives about 60 per cent of its energy from coal, 25 per cent from water power and the remainder from petroleum and natural gas.

Corpses Block Gun

One company up at Hagaru had a machinegun set up and they killed so many Gooks that they had to move their gun because they were piled up in front of it so high they couldn't see to fire.

I just found out that the night we sat on the mountain it was 35 below zero and the wind was blowing snow all over the place. Some of the guys went to sleep but I was afraid that if I went to sleep I would freeze to death. I am sure glad that that is over and I hope I never have to go through that again.

Japan's Energy
